IN SAHARA CRASH

ALGIERS (AP)—The wreckage of a missing four-engined Super Constellation was found in the Sahara Desert today and Air France said there were no survivors among the 78 people aboard, including 69 passengers.

Search craft found the wreckage smashed into lonely sand dunes of the Sahara about 75 miles north of the oil field of Edjele.

An Air France spokesman said among the passengers were the mother, wife and three children of Alan Lukens, U.S. chargé d'affaires in Bangui, Central African Republic. U.S. Embassy officials said Lukens apparently stayed behind while the family took a vacation.

Labor's Test
On 'Bill 42'
Before Court

(Special to the Times)

VANCOUVER — A local oil workers' union has challenged B.C.'s new labor legislation in the courts as being beyond provincial jurisdiction and a violation of Canada's Bill of Rights.

The union's lawyers today were to notify Attorney-General Robert Bonner of their action.

A statement of claim seeking right-of-dues checkoff from Imperial Oil Ltd. was filed Tuesday in the Supreme Court registry by Local 16-601 of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union.

ULTRA VIRES

The statement says B.C.'s "Bill 42" passed at this year's legislative session is "ultra vires."

The new law includes prohibition of the use of union dues for political purposes and requires unions to file a statutory declaration that they will obey this in order to obtain checkoff rights.

Imperial cancelled the checkoff April 15 when no affidavit was submitted.

With the statement of claim, filed by the law firm of Shulman, Tupper, Worrall and Berger, was a notice of motion that the union will seek an interlocutory order from the Supreme Court May 23 for reinstatement of the checkoff until the court test of Bill 42 is decided.

FREEDOM CURB

The notice adds: "The aforementioned legislation interferes with fundamental political freedom."

It adds: "The aforementioned legislation infringes the right of trade union members in B.C. to freedom of association, contrary to the Canadian Bill of Rights."

The law also abridges civil rights of union members outside the province, and affects election of members of Earlism, it says.

Saskatchewan Premier Tommy Douglas said in Victoria last week that the province is trying to halt political contributions to federal political campaigns, which are outside B.C. jurisdiction.

IMPOSSIBLE

The union's notices say that it is impossible to sign a statutory declaration that none of its membership funds — checkoff or otherwise — be used politically.

Some of its funds — $2 a month — go to international headquarters in Denver, says the union.

It also admits that it has made direct political contributions to election candidates "and may reasonably be expected to continue to do so in the future."

It says that it has agreed

Algeria Peace Talks
Set to Open May 20

PARIS (AP)—The French government and the leaders of the Algerian nationalist rebellion today agreed to begin their long-awaited peace negotiations May 20.

The announcement was made simultaneously by the French government in Paris and the rebel government-in-exile in Tunis.

The talks will be held in Evian-les-Bains on the French side of Lake Geneva. They were to have begun there April 7 but the Algerians balked at attending.

The brief communiques gave no details, but it was understood the two sides have agreed to break the negotiations down quickly into subcommittee sessions. These would go into detailed aspects of the self-determination solution proposed by French President Charles de Gaulle.

ASKED BY
LAOS REBELS

HONG KONG (Reuters)—Pro-Communist Pathet Lao rebels today demanded that the right-wing Laotian government accept tripartite talks to draw up rules for a cease-fire in the kingdom's civil war.

Pathet Lao radio, quoted by the New China news agency, said that until the cease-fire agreement was reached by the three Laotian factions — Pathet Lao, neutrals and rightists — "conditions are naturally lacking for the operation of the international truce commission on Laos."

LAOS TRUCE

'Confusing
But Encouraging'

VIENTIANE (AP)—Officials of the international control commission flew to the rebel-held Plain of Jars today in an effort to put the Laotian truce on firm footing before the opening of the Geneva conference on Laos Friday.

Before leaving, chairman T. Sam Sen of India said he has found the situation in Laos confused but "there are encouraging signs."

Sen declined to say, however, when he felt the commission could verify a trustworthy cease-fire — a condition the Western powers have laid down for attending the 14-nation Geneva meeting.

"We are going up to make contact and find out how the situation is," he said.

LONDON (Reuters)—Britain is still planning on the assumption that the 14-nation Geneva conference on Laos will open Friday as planned, a foreign office spokesman said today.

He said the British delegation headed by Foreign Secretary Lord Hume, plans to fly to Geneva Thursday.

But he told reporters it is a definite condition for British attendance at the conference that the three-nation truce supervisory commission now in Laos should report the existence of a de facto cease-fire in the civil war before it opened.

GENEVA (Reuters)—Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko arrived here today by air from Moscow to attend the 14-country conference on Laos opening Friday.

blacked out

KATMANDU, Nepal (Reuters)—Sir Edmund Hillary, conqueror of Mount Everest, today was reported to be walking down from his 21,000-foot-high Himalayan expedition's camp after suffering a mild stroke Sunday.

A report received here from his expedition site on Nepal's Mount Makalu said that Hillary, 41, suffered a "cerebral vascular accident" but his condition was described as not serious.

A cable sent by Hillary to his wife in Auckland, New Zealand, said he had a blackout, probably due to attempting to acclimate himself to high altitudes too quickly. This prevented him from joining the assault on Mount Makalu, he said.

A radio message received by the Nepal government did not say whether Hillary was returning to Katmandu or staying somewhere in the Himalayan area to guide his expedition members still on Makalu.

SHELF—PAGE 21Rights of Senate
Point at Issue

By TOM GOULD
(Times Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA—There is a strong possibility the government will call a snap federal election over an issue now boiling up in the Canadian Senate.

The usually quiet Senate chamber has been the scene of increasingly sharp exchanges in recent days in a battle over government amendments to the Customs Tariff Act.

Liberal senators, who have a big majority in the Upper House, have warned they intend amending the bill, which they say gives arbitrary powers to the minister of national revenue.

Tuesday night, Senator William Brunt, a personal friend and offshoot of Prime Minister Diefenbaker, issued what can only be described as an election challenge.

Senator Brunt was asked if he was challenging the Senate's right to amend the bill.

He replied:

"Take it as a challenge. This government has been very reasonable with respect to amendments made by the Senate, but no government can accept an amendment to this bill."

"That is my final word."

Senator Brunt did not speak off-the-cuff. Some hours before he made his statement in the House, he informed several reporters who work for Conservative newspapers to take note of his speech.

He was challenging the Senate's right to amend the bill.

GORDON CHURCHILL
"... partial return."Boost Due
In Vets'
Allowances

Plans for an increase in the federal war veterans' allowances were announced here today by Veterans Affairs Minister Gordon Churchill.

Mr. Churchill, here to campaign for Conservative candidate George Chatterton in Esquimalt-Saanich, said that eligibility for the allowance also will be widened.

At present 47,000 Canadians receive allowances, 12,000 of them in B.C.

Present allowance for a single man is $70 a month provided he earns no more than $20 a month steady income and $600 a year casual income, has liquid assets not exceeding $1,000 and a house not exceeding $8,000 value.

$120 MONTHLY

A married man gets $120 a month provided he earns less than $25 a month steady, $900 a year casual, and has no more than $2,000 liquid assets and a house the same value as a single man.

"It's only a partial return by the nation for services rendered," said Mr. Churchill.

"We will continue to survey the field with regard to other acts and see what further revisions are required."

Amount and timing of the increases will be decided later in Parliament, he said.

Mr. Churchill speaks tonight at 8 in Sansha Hall, Sidney, with Mr. Chatterton. He was to tour Veterans' Hospital this afternoon.

Mine Strike Threat

PORTHCAWL, Wales (AP)—Representatives of 83,000 Welsh coal miners unanimously approved a resolution today threatening strike action if the government approves plans to import low-priced American coal.

"It is not to do that, my friend," said Senator Baird.

"You make a mistake there, my friend," said Senator Baird.

Later in the debate, Senator Thomas Vien asked Senator Brunt if he was challenging the power of the Senate to amend the bill. Senator Brunt replied:

"In my opinion no body of appointed representatives have any right on budget or fiscal matters to go against the opinion and wishes of the elected representatives."

"If the government is wrong in this bill, there is a group that will correct it, namely the electors—that is their job, not our job."

The issue is part of a larger issue—that of free trade versus protectionism, on which party lines have been drawn clearly during the past two years.

The Liberals view the disputed bill as still another protectionist measure designed to assist eastern manufacturers against imported goods.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator J. William Fulbright, Arkansas Democrat, suggests that Cuba's Fidel Castro may become an albatross around the neck of Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

Fulbright, chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, told the Senate Tuesday that Russia soon will discover the Cuban regime is a "running abscess in the Caribbean."

Moscow has loaned Cuba more than $245,000,000, said Fulbright, and with Cuba's loss of the U.S. sugar and tourist market, Castro "may soon become an albatross around Khrushchev's neck."

22 DEAD, 150 INJURED IN PAKISTAN CYCLONE

DACCA, Pakistan (Reuters)—At least 22 persons were killed and 150 injured in a seven-hour cyclone that ravaged East Pakistan Tuesday, and officials said today the final death toll was bound to be much higher.

The cyclone ripped off the roof of the residence of East Pakistan Governor Mohammed Azam Khan. The cyclone was in the same area where one last October killed 14,000 persons.

Runaway Bus Rolls Over Youngster

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—A school bus lost its brakes near here Tuesday, shot through an intersection and plowed into a group of students, injuring a 10-year-old boy.

Another youngster was grazed as he dived out of the path of the bus. Eight others scattered to safety.

Doctors performed an emergency operation on John Esser, Matsqui, who suffered a broken pelvis and severe internal injuries. He was in critical condition today.

The second boy, Alan Stamler, 6, also of Matsqui, received minor cuts and bruises.

Police said the bus driver, James Dalgleish, 44, Abbotsford, reported he was approaching the quiet Matsqui intersection of Huntington and Le Feuvre Roads, to pick up the group of students.

The foot brakes failed, he tried the emergency brake, then put the bus into third gear and estimated his speed at 10 miles an hour as he approached the school children on a slight down grade.

The bus rolled to a halt where the road levels off beyond the intersection.

Mrs. Frank Stamler, mother of the second youngster, said the bus rolled over the Esser boy.

Trail Proposes Curbs To End Douk Violence

TRAIL, B.C. (CP)—Council held a special session with the RCMP Tuesday in an effort to find a solution to recent bombing outbreaks, blamed on the radical Sons of Freedom Doukhobor sect.

Council decided to suggest to Attorney-General Robert Bonner that consideration be given to issuing certificates to persons of Doukhobor origin identifying them as property tax payers.

It will also suggest curfews be imposed on persons not possessing certificates and production of the certificates by persons of Doukhobor origin applying for welfare benefits, motor vehicle licences and other privileges.

The majority of Doukhobors, including the troublesome Sons of Freedom sect that has been blamed for most of the violence over the years in the West Kootenay, do not own the land they work and live on and pay no property taxes.

The provincial government took over the land during the depression when the Doukhobor co-operative went bankrupt.

During their talks, the communiqué said, the ministers had considered means of assisting efforts being made by two NATO members—Greece and Turkey—to speed up development programs and improve living standards of their people.

The communiqué said the menace facing the alliance was not only military but also was political, economic, scientific and psychological.

"But it is resolved to defend the right of its peoples to live in freedom," the communiqué pledged.

SAYS PROGRESS MADE

At a press conference following the final session, the alliance's new secretary-general, Dirk U. Stikker of the Netherlands, said the Allies made progress in improving their method of consultation.

He said the ministers all discussed an awareness of the global threat now posed by Communism and reached a general agreement of views on

Conciliator Requested By Carpenters

Union negotiators for Greater Victoria's 600 carpenters have asked the department of labor for a conciliator in contract talks with the 123-member Building Industries Exchange.

A carpenter's spokesman said today talks have broken down in the area-wide negotiations, conducted separately from a provincial contract agreement concluded Tuesday, in which carpenters agreed to hold the line.

The current wage here is $2.84 an hour, eight cents below the 7,000 "outside" carpenters in B.C.

Complainant is W. A. Scott. The charge arose out of an assault trial.

FOR ART GALLERY

$14,000 Transfer Asked by Trustees

Transfer of a $14,000 centennial trust fund to Greater Victoria Art Gallery as an endowment is being sought by the committee of trustees.

A meeting this week passed a resolution asking intermunicipal committee to approve the transfer and recommend the four municipal councils endorse the action.

The money was left over from 1958 celebrations to which the municipalities and business firms contributed. The trust fund was set up to provide help with planning for a civic auditorium.

But trustees Saanich Reeve George Chatterton, Oak Bay

and Esquimalt Coun. G. K. Sammon decided to ask permission to turn it over to the art gallery, which was expanded as a centennial project.

EDGELAW AWAY

Ald. Geoffrey Edgeland, chairman of the committee, previously opposed the suggestion but was absent from the meeting.

He had contended that the trust fund's purpose should remain aimed at encouraging construction of an auditorium.

If any change was to be made, the money should be turned over to the city's 1962 centennial celebration fund, he said.

Berlin, Laos and The Congo. He did not go into details.

The 900-word communiqué made no mention of the American offer to deploy five Polaris submarines for the defense of the NATO area. This proposal, Stikker said, may reach the stage of decision at the next Atlantic conference in Paris in December.

U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk was scheduled to fly to Geneva tonight and External Affairs Minister Green of Canada was due there Thursday night. The U.S., Britain, France and Canada will be represented at the 14-country conference on Laos.

'BILL 42'

Continued from Page 1 to pay the Canadian District Council of the union 20 cents per capita a month and the council is establishing a political fund.

TO NEW PARTY

As well as this, 10 cents a month is paid to the Canadian Labor Congress which is planning per capita payment of five cents a month to the New Party, says the statement of claim.

This levy will follow formation of the New Party by the CLC and the CCF at a convention in Ottawa July 30 to Aug. 5.

Copies of the statement of claim and notice of motion were to be delivered to Attorney-General Bonner in Victoria today. He is being notified because a constitutional element is at stake in the court test of B.C.'s laws.

UP TO BONNER

Legal sources said it will then be up to Mr. Bonner to decide what role the government will play in the case and if it will be represented by its own lawyers in court.

The union first filed a writ against Imperial Oil April 26.

Its statement of claim outlines the case it intends to present in court.

The claim asks for reinstatement of the checkoff and a mandatory court order that it be permanent. The union also asks award of costs in the action and "such further and other relief as to this honorable court shall seem meet."

Affidavits from union members in support of the claim also were filed.

B.C. Attorney-General Rob Bonner said he "couldn't agree more" with a U.S. call for early action in ratifying the Columbia River power treaty.

"So far as B.C. and the federal authorities are concerned Canada is proceeding without any delay," he said. "There is no delay on B.C.'s end. The real energy on the Columbia's go-ahead has been initiated by the B.C. government."

He was commenting on a hurry-up plea Tuesday in Ottawa by U.S. Secretary of the Interior Stewart Udall.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 10, 1961

A Bomb for Mr. Fulton

MR. FULTON, CANADIAN MINISTER of justice and chief negotiator of the Columbia River power treaty, came to Vancouver Island last week to do a little discreet politicking in Esquimalt-Saanich and evidently in the hope of seeing Mr. Bennett. But, as before, he did not see Mr. Bennett.

The other cabinet ministers of British Columbia joined Mr. Fulton in an imitation bomb shelter to rehearse their role for the ultimate emergency. The Premier, by a curious coincidence, had fled to the mainland. Even the dangers of atomic war could not persuade him to meet Mr. Fulton and talk about the Columbia.

But Mr. Bennett's thinking on the power problem undoubtedly was reflected by Mr. William E. Ryan, business editor of The Vancouver Province, who has made himself the unofficial spokesman of the Wenner-Gren promotion on the Peace River.

Mr. Ryan, faithfully expressing the provincial government's party line, blames the federal government for endangering the whole Columbia power project. Everything could go ahead satisfactorily, says Mr. Ryan, both the Columbia and the Peace could be harnessed right away, if the federal government would only permit massive exports of power to the United States, as demanded by Mr. Bennett. But so long as the historic prohibition on exports remains then, Mr. Ryan says, the two rivers cannot be developed simultaneously, a "sensible pol'y" cannot be implemented.

Thus, says Mr. Ryan (letting the Wenner-Gren cat out of the bag) "Ottawa should be fully aware of the consequences if this is to be the case. Beyond question the Peace River power project—over which it has no control and for which it will receive no political or other credit—will go ahead speedily."

There we have it. If the Columbia scheme can be frustrated the way will be cleared for the Wenner-Gren scheme on the Peace. Instead of relatively cheap Columbia power we shall buy more expensive Peace power. Who can blame the federal government for thinking that this is exactly what Mr. Bennett has been driving at from the start?

No doubt Mr. Bennett wants both rivers-harnessed simultaneously but he agrees that this will be impossible unless the bulk of their power is exported for the use of our business competitors in the United States.

If the federal government refuses to abandon a policy of forty years, designed to conserve Canada's basic resources for Canadian use, then Mr. Bennett can turn to the Peace with his Wenner-Gren associates, as Mr. Ryan says. Even then, however, the Peace promoters will continue to demand the right to export.

For Mr. Bennett, the Peace alone is a second-best choice, but it will suit him fine. For above all, he wants the Peace scheme to go ahead.

Perhaps Mr. Fulton's trip to the coast (apart from some hand-shaking in Esquimalt-Saanich), was not wasted after all. He couldn't find Mr. Bennett even in a bomb shelter but he knows now that the provincial government intends to block the Columbia scheme if it cannot export the nation's basic resources.

He knows, too, as does Mr. Bennett, that already the United States government, as indicated in yesterday's comment by U.S. Secretary of the Interior Udall, is becoming a little impatient at the delay.

Eyes That Cannot Read

BARBARA MOON, WRITING IN Maclean's magazine, reports that a short time ago UNESCO forwarded a questionnaire on illiteracy to United Nations member countries. The one sent to Ottawa was returned with the notation that the question did not apply, since illiteracy was not a problem in Canada.

Most Canadians probably accept the comment from the authorities in this country. If they do, they are just as wrong as the authorities.

Illiteracy, in its narrowest sense and more particularly functional illiteracy, is a problem which does apply in Canada, with tragic results, as the Maclean's writer proves.

Her figures are startling and shocking. She says:

More than 200,000 adult Canadians have never been to school at all.

About 870,000 didn't get past Grade 4.

Of not quite 400,000 Canadian youngsters who enter Grade 2 every year, 76,000 drop out before Grade 8 and 132,000—one out of every three—don't go past Grade 8.

On her estimate, 11 per cent of the population has so little schooling that those in the group cannot be educated, upgraded and re-trained.

All this spells distress, sometimes disaster, for one out of 10 in the Canadian population when times are hard. It also indicates the greater distress and disaster in the offing if Canada does no better in educating the number so lacking in education that they haven't the mental tools to hold a job. That situation will become worse as elementary learning ceases to be sufficient to meet the demands of mechanical and technological advance.

The person who is not competent enough to read and understand directions, or to conduct the figuring necessary in various crafts and trades to which more machines are being introduced, will have fewer opportunities for jobs. The opportunities for that class are few enough now.

In Ontario, during the height of this year's unemployment, writes Miss Moon, there were 125 applications for every unskilled job listed in that province. At the same time, in 22 local Ontario offices, lists of jobs continuously available included openings in stenography, upholstery, domestic work, bookkeeping, data-processing-machine operation, diesel maintenance, sign painting, welding, meat cutting, retail selling, barbecuing, cooking, dry cleaning, silk-screen cutting, and medical record library work.

There were thousands of idle people seeking work and a substantial number of jobs seeking people. Illiteracy and functional illiteracy separated one from the other.

Some people, because of mental defects, may never become literate. Others, for reasons which can be removed, never equip themselves with the degree of literacy required to hold jobs.

Canadians should think of these facts. While the figures reproduced in Maclean's stand, we have little reason to be proud of the universal literacy we assume to be a national characteristic.

The Witch-Hunter

MR. GEORGE HAHN, SOCIAL Credit candidate, may be an insignificant factor in the Esquimalt-Saanich by-election. One of his campaign remarks the other evening cannot, however, be ignored.

Speaking of the political organization now being formed by the CCF and the labor unions, he said: "I like to think of them and I refer to them as the Communist Party of Canada under a new name."

At best, this is an intolerable insult to such Canadians as the late J. S. Woodsworth, Mr. M. J. Coldwell, Premier T. C. Douglas of Saskatchewan, the late Mr. Ernie Winch and scores of other high-minded people who have held positions with which many Canadians disagree, but whose honesty and sincerity is beyond question.

At worst, the remark is an indication of the thinking of this disciple of Social Credit, a shocking, fanatical expression of elemental bigotry which deserves no place in our public life. In a smear intended to discredit honorable men, Mr. Hahn doubtless has found more than the handle of his brush than on its bristles.

Monstrosities of Ugliness

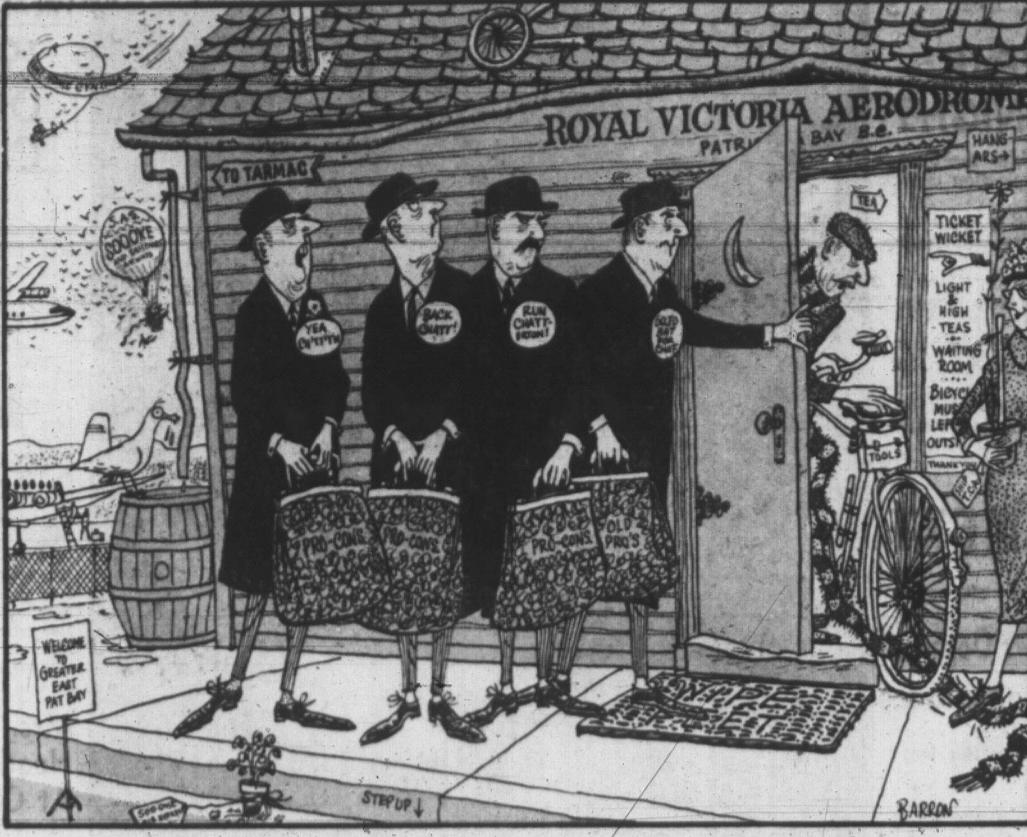

IF CANADIANS HAD BEEN design-conscious, says Senator Donald Cameron, director of the Banff School of Fine Arts, they would "have refused to buy some of those monstrosities of ugliness that pass for automobiles."

Which paraphrases what owners of fishtail models two or three years ago were saying about people who bought non-fishtail cars, and is being said today by drivers who have non-fishtail cars about those who still run the fishtail jobs.

But unless you stick with the regal grandeur of an early Rolls Royce, or that sweetheart of an old man's youth, the T-model Ford, how can you be sure what is really lovely?

To the mudhen, after all, her offspring is more beautiful than the swan.

—Barron, Victoria Daily Times.

THE FAILING VOICE

We're Too Particular for Generalities

I CAN remember the mid-June night in 1944 when Tommy Douglas swept into office in Saskatchewan with a landslide that shook the whole country.

All evening the returns had been pouring into Regina—a CCF win here, another there, leading by a wide margin somewhere else. It didn't take long to see the trend and know that something exciting was happening. As the party's hopes became fact the CCF headquarters took on the decibel rating of a Christmas party. The winners' names were shouted as they emerged over telephone or telegraph, but as the evening wore on and victory was certain, one name was heard above all the others. It was the name of the leader, Tommy Douglas.

Douglas was a familiar figure to reporters by then. His easy, friendly manner in conversation; his joke-studded, crowd-winning declamations from the platform; his energetic and capable approach; these were becoming his trade marks. Apparently they have lasted through the years.

Much of what he had to say made sense, whether or not you could go along with his party's theories. He was a good man, doing his best, and earning the public support he was accorded.

Limited Effect

These were impressions that had stayed in mind during the intervening years. He hasn't borne out all the political promise of that June evening; the socialist wave did not curl beyond the borders of Saskatchewan, and a good deal of even its local ideological force was gradually absorbed by the vast reaches of the Saskatchewan prairie.

But Tommy was delivering good enough government, no more socialist than the constitution and the even more inexorable laws of economics would permit. His "image" was still favorable.

Thus it was rather disappointing, on reading the speeches he has delivered here during the last few days, to find that Premier Douglas has slipped into a rhetorical style all too common among CCF speakers—the broad, sweeping denunciations and clichés that can appeal only to those eager to believe. Whether this has developed slowly through the years, or whether he adopted it merely for the purpose of addressing the far-west rubes, I cannot say.

It's a far cry, for instance, from the firm triumph of that 1944 election night to such mushy stuff as: "It is now becoming dangerous (in Canada) to stand for peace."

That's one of those cheap look-out-they'll-get-you, platform generalizations that don't survive a moment's thought. You can only get away with it when the applause is so loud the audience can only half-hear the remark.

He Knows

The reference, of course, was to a report that the RCMP is investigating the National Committee on Radiation Hazards, which also incited the remark: "It has now become a subversive organization."

Tommy Douglas knows it isn't dangerous to stand for peace in Canada. He knows that nobody in any official position believes Dr. Keenleyside's radiation committee to be subversive.

So why does he fork out such straw?

It is hard to believe that a man with Premier Douglas' background can really believe that the whole motive of the United States in its Cuban policy—desperately right or sadly wrong as that policy may be—is to "make the world safe for the United Fruit Company."

Can anybody dismiss on such a tin-whistle basis the implications of an action in an ideological war that is rocking the world as it has never in history been rocked? Is such a free-wheeling accusation, anchored in the good old socialist concepts of fifty years ago, to be the final criterion of the unprecedented struggle of world powers which is now going on about us? Is this prime ministerial calibre?

It is unfair to Tommy Douglas to think that he believes such a narrow viewpoint is valid. It is unfair to us for him to throw it at us as his real thoughts.

Off the Beam

Tommy cries for a "government interested in human welfare, not profits of the vested few." How can he reconcile that remark with the fact that Canada has as high a standard of living and as high a standard of welfare legislation as any country in the world?

Or that his "vested few" must also include the millions of Canadians who own stocks, bonds, real estate and life insurance?

And then his advice that NATO should be put under the control of the United Nations, along with the troops of the corresponding Soviet bloc. NATO was formed only to protect the Western democracies against Communist military encroachment. If the United Nations could guarantee that there would be no encroachment, then there would be no need for NATO.

But to suggest that NATO be controlled by the United Nations, in which Communist members have a full voice, is like proposing that Imperial Oil's board of directors should have a say in the affairs of Shell Oil, or that the CCF should have voting representatives helping to run the Laurier Club.

Well, perhaps it's our damp climate. Maybe this sort of thing sounds better in Regina. But it's pretty disappointing.

In 1939 its sales were about $21 million. By 1946, they had reached $72 million. In the next four years there was a great expansion to $164 million, owing presumably to the introduction by the company of the self-propelled combine. Although this particular advantage over competition was short-lived, the expansion continued: 1954, $297 million; 1957, $412 million; 1960, $490 million.

How does the operation work? Corporate offices, North American headquarters and six factories are in Canada. All combines and balers for the North American market are produced in Toronto.

Tractor output for this continent is centred in Detroit but about 40 per cent of the components (mainly engines) are shipped from the United Kingdom. However, a substantial number of tractors for the Canadian market are shipped directly from Britain, a movement encouraged by the opening of the St. Lawrence Seaway.

Integration has, of course, given the company the enormous advantage of access to the American market; about two-thirds of Canadian output is sold south of the border. Tractor movement, as noted above, is in the opposite direction. The company, therefore, is at one and the same time exporter and importer. The results should, however, be encouraging to Mr. Fleming and Mr. Coyne. Since 1949 this trade has achieved a net favorable balance for Canada of $460 million.

The basic factor that makes a Canadian-based farm implement industry feasible in a North American market is the lower labor cost in this country. Against this is the high Canadian cost of transportation. But this seems to be due in part to the fact that company freight does not qualify for the lower "agreed charges," which are granted only when the railways are faced with a competitive form of transport.

In the Opinion of Our Correspondents

Point of View

The recent banning of "Lady Chatterley's Lover" from Canadian newsstands is, in my opinion, an act of sheer narrow-mindedness.

If we were to foster our "moral sense" in antagonizing some of the world's greatest paintings and sculptures, I am sure they wouldn't stand eternal in their galleries like they do nowadays. A similar "free from scandal" attitude should also be applied to literature.

"Lady Chatterley's Lover" should stay in our bookstands, and the argument as to whether D. H. Lawrence is a literary genius or a sponsor of "abnormal filth" should go on for generations. Everyone's entitled to his own point of view.

GEORGE COOMBS, Esquimalt, B.C.

'Now We've Seen Everything'

Your editorial of April 25 is such a shameless exhibition of callous inhumanity that even Elchmann must feel a bit jealous. To call it a national disaster—that tens of thousands of the best farm land in the province should not be flooded out, that thousands of people should not lose their homes and farms and industries, must surely be the last words in evil thinking. Now we have seen everything.

The Times is peculiar in the newspaper world in that it has not one, but a bevy of editors, each one more important than the others. A good idea, because in times of stress the buck can always be passed.

The readers, however, would like to see the views of the paper based on more responsible findings. For instance this editorial quotes from Mr. Williston's speech as if they were dependable. The Times should know that they are not. In the House last session this gentleman was publicly reproved for putting his decimal points in the wrong places, thus invalidating his reports. So when he says that power would cost 4.25 mills he might easily mean 42.5 mills. You never know.

Why the Times should be so urgently anxious to push the devastation of its own country is incomprehensible. Now when the whole world is hungry for arable land, it will not bring admiration for B.C. if she deliberately sets out to destroy farm lands and turn thousands out of farms and homes. Nor will the above editorial bring friends for the Times.

We are told to believe that this Columbia River Treaty is based on equal terms for the U.S. and Canada. Where does the equality come in? Does the U.S. have to destroy a yard of land? Not on your life she does not. Does the U.S. have to spend half a billion on building dams? Not one cent. All she does is to reap the benefit of extra power.

H. G. HOWARD, 217 Cook St.

(Editor's Note: Canada's only chance of receiving cheap power as its share of downstream benefits arises from the investment of something more than $2 billion already made by the United States on American dams, powerhouses and turbines, which would create the extra electricity to be divided between the two countries.)

Fine Show to Mark Drum Presentation

All the stops will be pulled for a colorful ceremony when the province and Greater Victoria municipalities present an anniversary gift to the RCN Pacific Command next month.

The present—to commemorate last year's 50th anniversary of the establishment of the RCN—is a set of ceremonial drums decorated with sterling silver.

City council already has approved use of Beacon Hill Park for the evening ceremony on June 16.

A recent meeting of various representatives was told the presentation will involve a full ceremonial parade of RCN personnel including a color party, Royal guard and the band of HMCS Haden.

A large list of guests from all walks of life will be invited and the public will be able to attend the park ceremony.

The set, made in Great Britain after being ordered last year, includes a bass, two tenor and six side drums. Idea for the gift was advanced by the Armed Services Centre.

The $10,000 cost was split between the provincial government and the Greater Victoria municipalities.

Road to the Boardroom

WASHINGTON (UPI) — There was a squib on the news wire the other day which didn't exactly stop the presses but which at least gave me a pause.

It contained a trenchant comment by retired Maj.-Gen. John B. Medaris, former head of the army missile program who now serves as president of the Lionel Corp.

Medaris said he had discovered since moving into the world of commerce that many business leaders "have very little or no knowledge of technical terms and are primarily interested in cocktail-type parties and the sort."

"This, I said to myself, is a serious allegation and is something that I should look into at the earliest opportunity. I quite often talk to myself like that."

West

It was not, however, the lingering vestiges of an old passion that caused me to drop in on the party. I went there solely to investigate the Medaris theory of executive inhibition.

Miss Lamour qualifies as a subject for such a study because she has become a business woman. A couple of years ago she incorporated herself and she now serves as chairman of her board.

I found, Medaris to the contrary notwithstanding, that she is well versed in technical terms and apparently regards a cocktail-type party as only a business incidental.

"When I preside at board meetings," she told me, sipping a shrimp from a passing tray, "I become one of the boys."

It so, it is a neat trick. At 46, Miss Lamour retains the basic form she displayed when she and Bing Crosby and Bob Hope were travelling down all those roads together.

Plant Bands Useful... and Cheap

A phone call the other day reminded me that the exact procedure of using plant bands had not been described in this column, at least not in the last few years.

A plant band is a useful, inexpensive gadget manufactured by the million from thin veneer. Gardeners purchase them by the dozen or the hundred as they require, finding them cheaper and more versatile than clay pots for the growing-on of certain seedlings and cuttings.

When purchased, the band is a flat strip 2½ inches wide and of various lengths according to the size needed. Two-inch, 2½ inch and three-inch (square) are popular sizes.

ROOTS APART

Each band is scored at appropriate intervals, and after at least a night's soaking in water can be readily folded at the score marks to make a neat square.

The squares are set in rows tightly together in a flat, or wooden box, of a size to hold a convenient number. There should be no gaps between, nor at the ends or sides of the flat or box. If there are gaps, the bands will not hold their shape when filled with soil.

After the bands are neatly in place, they are filled with the soil mixture suited to the plants. The soil should be level with the top of the plant band and can be firmed sufficiently den soil.

'Great Fanfare' Predicted On Pat Bay Improvements

New Party candidate Glen Hamilton joined the ranks of electioneering prophets on Tuesday to predict the Esquimalt-Saanich by-election campaign will see the federal government announce a starting date on improvements to Patricia Bay Airport.

Announcement of this will be preceded by "a great fanfare of trumpets," he said, although money for the work has already been provided for in the estimates.

"If we could arrange to have a by-election running in Esquimalt-Saanich contiguously we would have nothing to worry about," Mr. Hamilton said. "We would even have full employment."

"THE BIG LIE"

The former social worker shrugged off charges by Social Credit candidate George Hahn that the New Party is "nothing but the Communist party of Canada under a new name."

Mr. Hahn appears to be following Hitler's policy of "the Big Lie," he said, "and this one's a whopper!"

Prospective members of the New Party are carefully screened, he said.

Mr. Hamilton charged the Progressive Conservative government in Ottawa with managing the country's affairs in confusion and with a lack of leadership; failure to provide an adequate health plan; failure to deal with a fundamental tax structure; and failure to deal firmly and decisively with the question of nuclear weapons.

He was addressing about 50 supporters at a meeting in St. Martin's-in-the-Field Church hall.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Supporting Mr. Hamilton was B.C. Opposition Leader Robert Strachan. He spoke at length on the New Party's "raison d'être."

"We want social security," he declared.

"If you examine the social programs implemented over the years you will find that what we have at the moment is a sort of social salvage—it is on a minimum basis."

Some of the programs, he said, were considered to be below even subsistence level.

"We want every individual—no matter what his color, race, creed or background—to have as his right access to as much education as he can absorb; access to cultural benefits and a reasonable pension," said Mr. Strachan.

The CCF leader criticized the B.C. government's Bill 42 for its "taking away of civil liberties and democratic rights."

"It's nothing but political vengeance," he said.

Ever since the time of Magna Carta, rights had been granted to a larger and larger circle of people. Now that circle was in danger of being reduced.

On the world scene, Mr. Strachan said most of today's unrest stemmed from economic reasons.

In the case of Cuba, the West had a marvellous opportunity to help her economically and tie her forever to the Western alliance.

Instead the treatment accorded Castro by the West had driven him into the Communist camp, he claimed.

In contrast to America's economic sanctions against that country, Russia loaned Cuba $60 million interest free.

CCF Leader Coming Here

National CCF leader Hazen Argue will spearhead the New Party's final drive in the Esquimalt-Saanich by-election campaign.

Mr. Argue will make at least two speeches in the last week of the campaign on behalf of Glen Hamilton.

He speaks May 24 at Shawnigan Lake Athletic Hall and May 25 at Lake Hill Women's Institute Hall.

Next New Party visitor will be Walter Pitman of Peterborough, first man to win a seat for the New Party in Parliament. He will address a meeting at Mount View High School May 18 and another at Mount Tolmie CCF Hall on May 19.

Harold Winch, the CCF member of Parliament for Burnaby, will also come to the riding May 26 and is expected to speak to a meeting.

Uranium Talks Set

OTTAWA (CP)—Trade Minister Hees announced Tuesday that talks between Canada and the United Kingdom on a British commitment to buy 12,000 tons of Canadian uranium—in 1963-66—will open in Ottawa June 12.

HOTEL OWNERS WARNED

Pub Behavior 'Disgusting'

DUNCAN—Owners of beer parlors in the city will be asked by the city council to take action to avoid scenes of drunkenness outside their premises on public streets.

COBBLE HILL

'Laugh It Up' Events Set For Gymkhana

COBBLE HILL — A gymkhana with a few differences will be held Sunday, May 28, at Tyerman's Rim Rock Ranch here, starting at 1:30 p.m.

It will be the annual meet of Malahat Trail Riders, and while ability to ride will help, a horse with personality and rider with a sense of humor might do better than the experts.

For instance, there is a hat parade, but the hats are to be worn by the horses.

The bareback race will call for riders to finish facing aft. Three-man teams will compete in the water relay, with a mug full of water to be passed back and forth. Winning team is that with most water left in the mug at the end of the race.

Musical mounts will be played with the riders doing the running around instead of the horses.

There will be 12 events in all, and in all of them, there will be points allowed for horsemanship, sportsmanship, and courtesy, in addition to actual placing.

Judge will be Bob Shanks of Victoria.

Museum Pieces Or Junk?

DUNCAN — James Leask treasures in the back yard of his home on Nagle Street a collection of old car batteries, old car bodies, and ancient guns which he says were manufactured before the days of bored barrels.

At a meeting of city council Monday night he referred to his collection as "museum pieces," but aldermen inspected his premises then allowed him three months to move his "junk."

Mayor Jack Dobson said action was taken in view of neighbors' complaints, and the fact that Mr. Leask's property is in a zoned residential area.

BELMONT PARK May Queen is Carol Ann Murphy, Egerton Avenue, who will be crowned at John Stubbs Memorial School Friday at 2:30 p.m. at a ceremony to be presided over by Mrs. Groos, wife of Commodore H. Field Day Set For June 17

B.C. Jersey breeders will hold their annual field day June 17 on Vancouver Island.

Those from the mainland will arrive by government ferry and make a tour of Saanich farms, then have lunch at Dogwood Farm, Royal Oak, owned by Brian Hoole and Son.

He did not elaborate, but outline of the building and accommodation problems facing the board at this time.

SEPTEMBER START

Board chairman Mrs. Isabelle Tarlton reported grade 13 has been established at the school, and will be in session in September. There will be an enrolment of 87 for the first term, including 55 students from Duncan and district, 21 from Lake Cowichan, and 11 from Chemainus.

She said plans for pre-vocational training are under consideration, and two more classes for slow learners in secondary schools are being organized.

Mrs. Tarlton also deplored the "serious library situation" in Duncan, and suggested immediate action be taken to improve it.

Other speakers were trustees Pat Mason, J. S. C. Fraser, and Harold Whitfield, who discussed duties of the school board transportation and finance committees.

Arrangements for the tour are being made by Ken Jameson, district agriculturist; L. F. Solly, Westholme, creamery fieldman; and 4-H leaders.

Close to 100 youngsters are expected to assemble at the creamery at 10:30 a.m.

MASSAGING MESSAGE KEPT THEM RUNNING

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa (AP) — Coe College stole eight bases in a 14-3 baseball victory over Knox.

But it wasn't until the game was half over that coach Bill Fitch discovered why his players were taking so many liberties.

Assistant coach John Jermier was relaying Fitch's signals. The steal sign included Jermier holding his head. But Jermier also had a headache.

Every time his head started to throb, Jermier massaged it, and another Coe runner started to steal.

SPORTS DIARY

By JIMMY CANNON

NEW YORK — Ebbets Field is gone, as if the sea rolled in from Coney Island and claimed it. The last great team that played there has been dispersed. They are lost in other towns in a different generation or they work at less spectacular jobs in quieter places.

The old bunch is still represented on the Dodgers by Gil Hodges, Duke Snider and Junior Gilliam. But they are strangers from another time, aliens among the kids, remote in the sad way skillful athletes become obscure during their final seasons.

Now Hodges spends most of his time in miserable leisure in the dugout. Down the coast from Los Angeles, Snider waits for his fractured elbow to heal on an avocado ranch. Gilliam expects the road secretary to hand him a plane ticket after every game. And Don Newcombe has left them for Spokane in Coast League. They told him he'll be back, but I doubt it.

The wheelchair's got Roy Campanella. Neglected by public attention, Jackie Robinson works in the hushed solitude of an office. You see Pee Wee Reese around the ball-yards but he performs in his street clothes in the television coop. Up in the Ozarks, Preacher Roe runs a grocery store. In Detroit, Clem Labine still gets them out if he can keep the curve ball down. And Big Newk is in the minors.

In '56, when Newk won 27 games, Gabe Paul, then general manager of Cincinnati Reds, insisted the pitcher was worth $500,000 and was ready to negotiate at the price. But, after the fuzz was off Newk's fast ball, all Paul had to give up was Johnny Klippstein and Steve Bilk. After Brooklyn, all Iowa were alike for Newk.

From Cincinnati, Newk was shipped to Cleveland. But he was just an old guy sneaking by on his reputation. You can't throw a curve with press clipping. No one ever got a batter out with a World Series ring. And the ones sent for Newk when Cleveland advised him to pack his trunk and the clubhouse boy asked him to settle the bill for the cokes.

I've often wondered why people in baseball enjoy slandering Newcombe. The blackguards denounce him as a shiftless guy who doesn't keep himself in shape. But every manager he ever played for will tell you no one works harder.

It became popular to agitate against him as a pitcher who always lost the big games. I remember Birdie Tebbetts' anger when the subject came up after a World Series game in which the Yankees tore in Newk's fast ball.

"Anyone who wins 27 games in a season," said Tebbetts, "must win a lot of big games. He's the main reason Brooklyn's in the Series."

Of course, Newk encouraged the liars by scuffling with parking lot attendants and sulking when he believed managers were unfair. He bawled out Sandy Amoros publicly for dropping a fly ball which lost him a game and Carl Furillo roared him for it. He is always in a hassle of some kind. I pull for him because I believe he is a man to be cherished.

Other players are praised for being philanthropists because they scribble their names on a boy's score card or visit sick children in hospitals. Big Newk adopted three kids. But, he told Frank Slocum, never again would he return to the orphanage where he found his family. The pledge was expressed with such a furious despondency that it disturbed Slocum.

"Why?"

"I just can't stand it," Big Newk said. "I love every one of them. I want to take them all home with me."

I don't know another guy like that in baseball. I guess there aren't many like Big Newk on earth.

Bigelow Bounced In Opening Round

Dr. George Bigelow, who was shooting for his 10th title, has been bounced out of the running in this year's chase for the Victoria Golf Club championship.

Bigelow, medalist in the club tournament and runner-up in the Vancouver Island Open this spring, was upset in the first round Tuesday by Al Manson.

The 19-year-old Manson scored a 1-up victory over the former champion.

STAR OF THE GAME

Spectators at National League ball game in Chicago frequently found their attention turning from the diamond to a tot perched atop the roof of the Giants' dugout. Johnny Jonassen, 2 1/2, climbed out of his seat onto the roof, reached over and was handed a baseball. He turned the ball over to his dad, John Sr., then stretched out with an "Aw, shucks, might as well take a snooze" attitude. (AP Wirephoto.)

Gentile Goes to Bench After Two Grand Slams

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Jim Gentile of Baltimore Orioles made baseball history by hitting grand-slam home runs in two consecutive innings Tuesday. He gets his reward today — a twi-night doubleheader, but also postponed the St. Louis-Cincinnati contest.

Jim Landis' two-run homer in the eighth against the Indians enabled southpaw Herb Score to win his first game of the season for the White Sox.

Score limited the tribe to two hits while loser Jim Perry yielded only four, two of them by Landis.

Gentile, in addition to hitting the first grand-slammers in consecutive innings, bettered the American League mark of seven runs batted in consecutive innings held by himself, George Sisler and Vic Wertz.

Gentile batted in seven in the sixth and seventh innings of a game last June 26.

It was Gentile's day as the club entertained 4,514 fans by belting seven balls out of the park.

Gentile, in addition to hitting the first grand-slammers in consecutive innings, bettered the American League mark of seven runs batted in consecutive innings held by himself, George Sisler and Vic Wertz.

Gentile batted in seven in the sixth and seventh innings of a game last June 26.

Three other players, Tony Lazzeri (1936), Jim Tabor (1939) and Rudy York (1946), hit two grand-slammers in a game, but not back-to-back.

HAD UPS AND DOWNS

Gentile, always a long-ball hitter, has had his ups and downs. The Brooklyn, later Los Angeles, Dodgers had him up from St. Paul Saints of the American Association a couple of times, but apparently gave up on him.

The Dodgers used up their options on him, so he was available to any club for a price. The Orioles grabbed him at the end of his 1959 season with the Saints.

Gentile settled down to play major league baseball last year hitting .292 in 138 games, blasting 21 home runs and rapping home 98.

This year he has clouted nine homers, is hitting .353 and leads the league in RBIs with 30.

Ron Hansen also homered for the Orioles to help Chuck Esterday to his second victory. Bob Allison hit a pair of homers for the Twins. Hal Naragon and Harmon Killebrew hit one apiece.

Elsewhere in the AL, Chicago White Sox snapped a seven-game losing streak with a 4-2 victory over Cleveland Indians; Kansas City beat New York, 5-4; first-place Detroit ran its winning streak to six games with a 7-2 win over Washington in the opener of for

Without Big Les It Might Be Close

Westminster Extends Skein; Vics Host Nanaimo Tonight

The way to stop New Westminster from making a shambles of the Inter-City Lacrosse League derby might be to snap shackles on Les Norman.

Westminster, threatening to run away and hide in the scramble for the league title, extended its unbeaten streak and moved into a six-point lead Tuesday, making it five straight victories by tripping Vancouver 10-8 at Kerrisdale Arena.

That shattered Vancouver's winning skein at three games and tonight another streak should be snapped at Memorial Arena.

GAME TONIGHT

Victoria and Nanaimo each shooting for its first victory of the campaign, tangle on the Memorial Arena concrete and both can't lose. Nanaimo is winless in four trips to the post while the Vics have come out on the wrong side of the ledger in two starts.

Once again it was Norman who anchored New Westminster. The big goalie, who shared rookie-of-the-year honors with Victoria's Jim McNeill two years ago, proved the difference Tuesday as he blocked 39 of 47 shots fired his way. Don Hamilton stopped only 26 of 36 drives at the Vancouver nets.

In five games this season, Norman has yielded only 31 goals and turned aside 166 shots.

USSELMAN STARS

Jack Barclay and Bill Wilkes each scored twice to pace the Westminster attack. Cliff Sepka and Bob Bateman each chipped in with three assists.

Vancouver's Fred Usselman topped the scoring parade, connecting for three goals and one assist to make it seven goals in three assists in two games.

Victoria coach Arnie Ferguson hopes to have more punch in his lineup tonight. Jackie Showers, who fired 15 goals in his rookie season and was sidelined last year by injuries, is slated to return for full-time duty.

Ferguson plans to work Showers on a line with Ron Jay and Reg Foster.

McNeil, who missed one game with a toe injury, is also scheduled to return to action tonight, playing on a line with Bill Munroe and Wally Roundy.

FRANKFURT (AP)

Armin Hary of West Germany, 1960 Olympic gold medal winner and world record holder in the 100-metre dash at 10 seconds flat, announced today he has withdrawn from active sports life and won't race any more.

Hary's announcement was made by his lawyer, Dr. Carlo Foerster.

Harry Foerster said, had suffered knee injury in a car accident in Berlin last Nov. 26 and the injury has not fully healed.

Foerster quoted Hary as saying: "It would take at least a year before I can race again. Not being able to train for one year for an athlete of my age means I will never regain my top form."

Hary is 24. At a sports meet at Zurich, Switzerland, last June 21, he became the first man to run the 100 metres in 10 seconds.

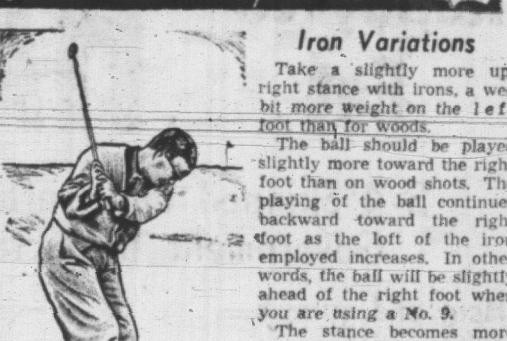

A few weeks later in Saskatoon, July 15, Harry Jerome of Vancouver equalled it.

Hary was suspended last January by the Hesse State Athletics Federation on charges of rigging his expense account. The suspension originally ran until the end of 1961 but was later reduced to last until May 7.

Iron Variations

Take a slightly more upright stance with irons, a wee bit more weight on the left foot than for woods.

The ball should be played slightly more toward the right foot than on wood shots. The playing of the ball continues backward toward the right foot as the loft of the club increases. Therefore, you will be facing more toward the hole with a No. 9 iron than when using a No. 5.

Friend Indeed in Times Of Need: the Sally Ann

By LES MILLIN

"For Christ to witness and to win."

With this motto as a guide, The Salvation Army has for many years carried out its work of comfort and mercy in the Victoria area, bringing relief to the afflicted and the unfortunate wherever possible.

Its work includes hospital visits, rehabilitation for alcoholics, correctional services with criminals and juvenile delinquents, running a missing persons bureau, supplying both permanent and transient hostel accommodation for men as well as assistance in such emergencies as floods and mining disasters.

In addition, the Victoria branch operates in the city the Victoria Sunset Lodge which has given devoted care to aged women from various parts of Vancouver Island. It has a total capacity of 30, and is one of the 132 such lodges operated by the Army in many countries.

New Sunset Lodge

The Salvation Army is campaigning during the month of May for funds to enable it to build a $750,000 Sunset Lodge for both men and women. It will include 120 single rooms, as well as 10 suites for married couples.

Reading and television lounges, a library, outdoor recreation areas and a 6-bed infirmary are among its projected facilities. Twenty-four hour supervision will ensure tranquillity for the aged guests.

The Mary Moore Home and hospital at Cobble Hill now in its second year of operation under the Salvation Army, has supplied a similar service for 59 aged persons within the last year.

Employment Bureau

Through a free employment bureau, the Army attempts to find jobs for unemployed men, and its social service department provides beds, meals, clothing and furniture either free, or at a price within the reach of those who need them. Over 10,000 beds were provided by the Salvation Army last year, and better than 300 jobs were found for unemployed men.

Collaborating with Salvation Army headquarters in every part of the globe, the Immigration Department of the Army helps in the transfer and settling of persons and families from one country to another.

Since 1951, the Victoria Harbor Light Corps has worked to rehabilitate alcoholics. One of five such in Canada, it has helped more than 3,000 men to a better way of life, businessmen and young people as well as the homeless men who are on the last mile of suffering.

Emergency Plan'

When disaster strikes, the Salvation Army can render prompt on the spot assistance through its "emergency plan" blue prints, which are so designed that relief work can go into action at a moment's notice.

When fire struck Nanaimo's Chinatown, clothing, blankets and food were distributed at

By Veterans

OTTAWA (CP) — Veterans Minister Churchill announced Tuesday new regulations are being drafted to reduce the minimum size of Veterans Land Act holdings to half an acre from two acres.

The new regulations will also permit veterans to dispose of part of their larger holdings, he said.

Mr. Churchill said date on which the new regulations would take effect would be announced later.

He said veterans would be granted permission to reduce the size of their holdings under the Veterans Land Act in most cases.

H. W. Herridge (CCF—Kootenay West) said the announcement would be welcome to thousands of veterans who wanted to take up land under the VLA but could not get the two acres required in the vicinity of most large cities where they wanted to live.

once, and headquarters in Toronto immediately made available emergency funds to give instant assistance to those in need.

As well as emergency help, the Salvation Army contributed to the Nanaimo Chinatown rehabilitation fund.

Visits to police court, visits to prison, assistance to prisoners in securing parole—these are only a few of the services provided by the Army's correctional services officer. Ex-prisoners are assisted with meals, beds, fares so that they could return home or look for work.

In the last year, the Salvation Army's total of letters written and phone calls made on behalf of prisoners came to 202.

Visits to police court and prison totalled 332, and 20 visits were made to the families of prisoners.

Salvation Army hospitals for unwed mothers cared for 66 girls from Vancouver Island during the last year, out of a total of 568 who made use of the hospital services. A new wing was added to the Salvation Army's Grace Hospital in Vancouver which will give accommodation for an additional 30 beds and 32 bassinets, as well as providing labor, delivery, recovery and operating rooms.

These services are administered largely by dedicated officers of the Salvation Army who have made social welfare their life work.

The necessary funds, however, must come from the public. A certain amount is received in bequests every year, but the annual Red Shield campaign must supply the bulk of the funds, and the Red Shield has only one source of income—the public.

CHINA, AUSTRALIA
IN BIG GRAIN DEAL

HONG KONG (UPI)—Australia has signed a one-year contract with Red China to deliver $135 million worth of grain, a sale which would exceed the bumper deal with Canada for one-year delivery, reliable sources said today.

Australian Wheat Board chairman Christopher J. Perrett, just back from Peking, flatly declined to comment on the report.

The deal was to have included wheat as well as other grain.

Although Canada's $360 million grain deal with Peking was larger, it also was spread over a three to five year period. Australia's contract will be fulfilled this year, sources said.

THOUSANDS HOMELESS

Floods Bog Central U.S.

CHICAGO (AP)—Damaging spring floods spread across the lowlands of the United States' mid-section today, bringing more misery and discomfort to thousands.

The worst flooding appeared in southern Illinois, Missouri, Indiana, Kansas and Kentucky. Thousands were homeless. Some of the communities were isolated.

There was fear in some areas of typhoid fever from contaminated water. Some major and many secondary roads were closed. Business slowed in many of the flood-stricken towns and halted in some.

The worst appeared over in some sections. In Ohio and Oklahoma the threat of major flooding appeared easing.

Soldiers, sailors, civil defence workers, schoolboys and women worked to hold back the muddy waters from lapping into the lowland homes or spreading into business districts. The Red Cross and the Salvation Army were at the flood scenes to give aid and comfort and shelter.

TOWN IN DANGER

In Indiana, some 360 volunteers, national guardsmen and navy personnel sandbagged the earthen levee in Florida, threatened by floodwaters of the west fork of the White River. The river was four feet above the town level and civil defence officials said the entire population of about 900 would be endangered if the levee broke.

In Centralia, Ill., residents were without drinking water Tuesday after the city's water pumps were submerged under 20 feet of water.

Swart, 57, will assume office when South Africa leaves the British Commonwealth and formally becomes a republic on May 31.

The lanky leader, who was backed by the National Party, will be the nation's head of state, technically replacing Queen Elizabeth. South Africa's chief executive and most powerful official is the prime minister, currently Hendrik Verwoerd, head of the National Party.

Swart was elected by the South African Assembly, rather than by popular vote, in accordance with the new constitution. The vote was 139 to 71. His only opponent was the former South African chief justice, H. A. Fagan, who was nominated by a combined opposition front.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Dr. R. A. Holtum of Victoria was re-elected president of the B.C. Naturopathic Physician Association at an annual northwest convention held in Portland, Oregon, last weekend. Other officers elected were: Dr. D. J. Kirkbride, Nanaimo, vice-president; Dr. F. W. Loffler and Dr. A. L. Russell of Vancouver, board members.

A local senior citizens organization has asked for regulation of ambulance rates.

Request was sent to Health Minister Eric Martin and Mayor Percy Scourah by the Senior Citizens' Campaign Council.

The organization complained that rates vary from $12 to $20 for a run to the hospital. It also claimed that in one case, an elderly woman who suffered a heart attack was taken to hospital by ambulance but "on route the driver stopped and asked if she would pay the ambulance service the $15."

Pleading guilty to theft over $50, Keith Ford of Victoria was remanded in city police court today until Friday for sentence.

He admitted stealing an outboard motor, controls, battery and gasoline from a vacant lot adjoining Harbor Marine. The goods belonged to Gordon Bransen.

William Clarence McKinney, 19, HMCS Naden, was fined $20 in city police court today for being a minor in possession of liquor.

Saanich public works committee Tuesday approved taking $10,500 from general revenue to construct storm drains on Craigmillar Avenue and Kathleen Street.

Drainage construction will also be carried out at Hampton Park at a cost of $3,000.

Even its competitors like the popular government ferry service between Tsawwassen and Swartz Bay.

Black Ball Ferries today inaugurated a package tour by bus and ferry from Vancouver, to Victoria, Nanaimo and return to Vancouver.

The inaugural run was welcomed by Mayor Percy Scourah—as it arrived at Swartz Bay aboard a government ferry on its first leg of the tour!

Launching of the world's largest log-carrying barge by Jarrows Ltd. will take place at 4 p.m. Monday in Esquimalt Harbor.

Built for MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Co., the carrier will be christened Haida Carrier by Mrs. J. V. Clyne, wife of the firm's chairman.

When completed, the craft will be self-loading and dumping, will measure 340 feet overall and 64 feet beam, will carry 1,500,000 board feet of logs and a 20-foot boom tug. It is designed for the Queen Charlotte-Juan de Fuca run.

George A. Riley of Vancouver was fined $250 in city police court Tuesday after conviction for impaired driving. Magistrate William Ostler also ordered his licence suspended for four months.

Women's auxiliary of Centennial United Church will sponsor a Meistersingers concert in the church tonight at 8:15 p.m.

Talk about accomplished facts.

City council Thursday will hold a routine public hearing to find out if there are any objections against a rezoning application by Imperial Motor Hotel Ltd. so as to can erect a motel at Discovery and Douglas Streets.

If there are objections, it may be difficult to hear them over the noise of hammering and concrete pouring at the site—where workmen already are constructing the third storey of the $750,000 development begun a month ago.

First of a series of lectures on "art in travel" will be given by Mrs. P. S. Widdup at the Victoria Art Gallery at 8:30 tonight. She will show 150 slides on lands and art monuments met with in travels through Africa, India and the Far East.

Dr. J. E. Schinbein will show a film on mouth-to-mouth respiration at the next regular meeting of Langford PTA to be held in the school's activity room, Monday, at 8 p.m.

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Some of the most stunning pictures of animals and birds are on display at the Victoria Public Library.

They are part of a Popular Photography International Exhibition featuring about 100 prints, representing examples of contemporary photography from all parts of the world.

All prints are prize-winning photographs in the annual Popular Photography $25,000 International Picture Contest, one of the biggest photographic events in the United States.

The show is on until Saturday of next week.

The bird prints include some spectacular shots of sea-gulls in flight and geese. One clever animal picture portrays an alley cat about to rummage through a garbage can.

The exhibition also covers a broad range of other subjects, such as dramatic and human interest photography, landscapes and outstanding examples of portraiture. Most prints are in black and white.

The color photograph, "A Girl With a Rose," which won first prize, is also included in the collection.

Entries come from Sweden, Japan, Italy, Denmark, Canada and the U.S. There are only two Canadian prints in the collection.

Thirty per cent of the entries were from foreign countries, the rest from the United States. But by the time preliminary screening was completed, the international tables were turned—60 per cent of the survivors were foreigners and 40 per cent United States.

Hiker Quits, Apologizes To Victoria

Attempt by two Victoria Jaycees to walk across the country, coast-to-coast, has ended in Montreal—875 miles and two months after it started in Halifac.

Blaine Tringham, surviving member of the duo who set out to hike 4,000 miles to publicize Victoria, announced Tuesday he is giving up.

His partner, Don Johnson, was forced to drop out early in the project with leg trouble.

APOLOGIZES

A terse wire from Blaine received today said:

"I wish to apologize to the people of Victoria who were behind this project; I only hope they will be able to allow for my weakness and accept my failure. My decision to continue alone when Don was forced to drop out was a foolhardy one. I have no excuses, just apologies."

Griff Layne, head of the organizing Jaycee committee, said today he was proud of the boys getting as far as they did.

BAD WEATHER

"They had to go through 875 miles of the worst possible weather," he said. "While they didn't succeed in walking across Canada, they did a wonderful job on publicity."

The pair carried "Follow the birds to Victoria" slogans through three provinces.

"Never has the city of Victoria received so much publicity for so little money," he said.

Businessmen and residents raised about $250 for the project and the city made a grant dollar for dollars towards the expenses. The hikers' air fare to Halifax was paid by Jaycees.

NEW OFFICERS

Recreation Minister Earle Westwood, J. W. Eastman and George Hardy were elected honorary presidents, with P. J. Croft, vice-president; Miss Irene Latimer, secretary; Mrs. A. Davidson and G. Clifford Carl, editors of The Victoria Naturalist.

Chairmen of groups: Mrs. D. Stirling and Mrs. H. Mathieson, program; T. R. Briggs and D. Stirling, ornithology; Miss M. C. Melburn and Dr. C. Lowe, botany; Dr. John A. Champa, entomology; Dr. Clifford Carl, zoology; Miss Enid Lemon, audubon; Mrs. G. E. Soulby, federation; Mrs. J. R. Parris, conservation; Freeman King and Mrs. K. Osborne, juniors.

ESSAY WINNERS

Nancy Chapman was named winner of the junior essay contest for children of 13 and over. Lorne Edwards and Jacqueline von Kelenberg received honorable mention.

Ross Storey, won the contest for children under 13 and Brian Harvey received honorable mention. Entries were judged by Brian Tobin of The Victoria Times.

An urgent appeal to Victoria gardeners to "go easy" with their spray guns was voiced today by a provincial apiculture inspector.

David Scholes said thousands of bees—the gardener's best friends—have been killed accidentally by lethal poisons intended for garden pests.

"We've had about a dozen colonies of honey bees virtually wiped out in the past month," said Mr. Scholes. "It's the worst year I can remember."

Colonies are starving to death in their hives as the field bees die of poisons sprayed on blossoms and other food sources.

All signs point to the work of weekend gardening enthusiasts getting carried away with the powerful poisons like Malathion.

"Gardeners could help the situation by not spraying flowers that are in bloom or about to bloom," said Mr. Scholes. "Spraying in the evening, when bees are not flying, also would help."

Three City Vessels Enter 136-Mile Ocean Classic

A record entry of at least 50 yachts is expected in the annual Swiftsure ocean race from Brotchie Ledge to the Swiftsure lightship and return to be held Saturday, May 27.

Uwila, a new light displacement yawl, owned and skippered by Dr. R. H. Trythall, with a crew of six. The Uwila was built by the Canoe Cove Shipyard, Sidney, from an original design by Dana Ramsay of Victoria.

There will be a 35-mile pre-Swiftsure race for A, B and C classes, starting from Cadboro Bay next Sunday at 8:55 a.m.

WARMUP

"This race is not restricted to Swiftsure starters," an official said, "but is intended to provide Swiftsure crews with some practice competition."

At least three Victoria yachts will compete in both the pre-Swiftsure race and the classic itself. They are:

Jay-Jay, a British-designed Lion class sloop owned and skippered by Cmdr. John Reid with a crew of six including

Junior Beatniks Beat the Boss And Their Spelling's Atroshus

High school commercial course graduates show marked deficiencies in English composition, grammar and punctuation, spelling and penmanship, according to a survey of 40 businesses carried out by the Victoria branch of the National Office Management Association.

INTERESTING

Releasing the report today, branch president I. D. Lachlan stated: "While expressing no opinions, either pro or con, on the Chant report, the reactions of Victoria businessmen to teaching of the 'three Rs' as reflected in the questions and comments are certainly interesting."

Questioned on what subjects for the high school curriculum were considered most important, the firms surveyed answered in this order:

English composition, grammar and punctuation, arithmetic, spelling, typewriting, shorthand, penmanship, filing, simple business fundamentals, bookkeeping, meeting the public and operating office machines.

Asked whether the appearance and deportment of high school graduates was satisfactory, the majority of the firms polled answered in the affirmative, but some had reservations.

JUNIOR BEATNIKS

Among the comments: "Sloppy," "hair not well groomed, too many sweaters, pay little attention to shoes, try to be too glamorous."

"Some appear for interview properly attired and later look like junior beatniks, but these are exceptions rather than the rule."

Main reason given for beginning clerical workers failing in their jobs was "lack of interest" followed by "lack of ability" and "poor attitude."

Several firms made these suggestions for bolstering the commercial curriculum: A short course in telephone procedure and encouragement of interest in appearance, courtesy and punctuality.

Many comments were re-

OAK BAY'S MILL RATE STANDS PAT

Oak Bay property owners are hard to upset, according to Reeve George Murdoch, who had good news of a static mill rate today.

The tax rate remains at 41 mills, but few people will cheer.

"When it appeared we were going to have a one mill increase I spoke to a number of people about it," Mr. Murdoch said.

"The feeling seemed to be, 'what's one mill?'"

The prospective increase was wiped out by a last-minute provincial order-in-council which changed the timing in use of a federal grant to municipalities.

ceived on attitudes toward jobs which suggested that too many young people are interested only in the pay and the hours, and show little sense of ultimate values in their job seeking.

DO JUST ENOUGH

"It is the exception rather than the rule to find young employees who want or request to take on extra responsibilities," stated one employer. "They will do what is required, day by day, but do not think of accumulating knowledge and building security for the future."

"Girls, in particular," this employer added, "have a tendency to think of their positions as a temporary measure pending marriage; many have a tendency to assume all good things will come whether they apply themselves or not."

By PENNY SAVER

Many a smart grandmother could be taken for her daughter because of the way in which she watches her diet and so retains her youthful figure. If your Mum falls into this category why not surprise her with a pair of bathroom scales on Mother's Day?

Ones I've seen are beautifully made with magnified, easy-to-read dials and precision-accurate machinery. All have safety-mat bases that are stain-proof and scuff resistant. Motif consists of a large golden star and myriads of tiny golden flecks.

They come in pink, yellow, turquoise, white, green or mottled black and white and sell at either $8.95, $10.95 or $13.95. Difference in price is due to variation in base, mechanically they're all the same.

Another item that's bound to be popular with Mum are the new velvetex scatter rugs and bath sets that look just like lambswool yet are completely washable, either by washing in cold water and detergent or in a washing machine, using the delicate fabrics cycle.

Colors are exciting and include mauve, white, candy pink, yellow, leaf green, sherry, turquoise, sherry and beige. Bath room set that consists of toilet seat cover and oval rug is priced at $6.95.

Scatter rugs come in two sizes. Ones measuring 27 inches by 48 inches sell at $6.95 while others, measuring 27 inches by 36 inches, are priced at $5.95. They're long-wearing, non-allergic, mothproof and have rubberized backing that makes them completely non-skid.

In a Rut and Can't Get Out?
Just Jump a Little Higher

"A frog was caught in a deep rut in the road, and in spite of the help of his friends, he couldn't get out. In despair, they finally left him. But the next day one of his friends saw him chitter as you please, no longer in the rut."

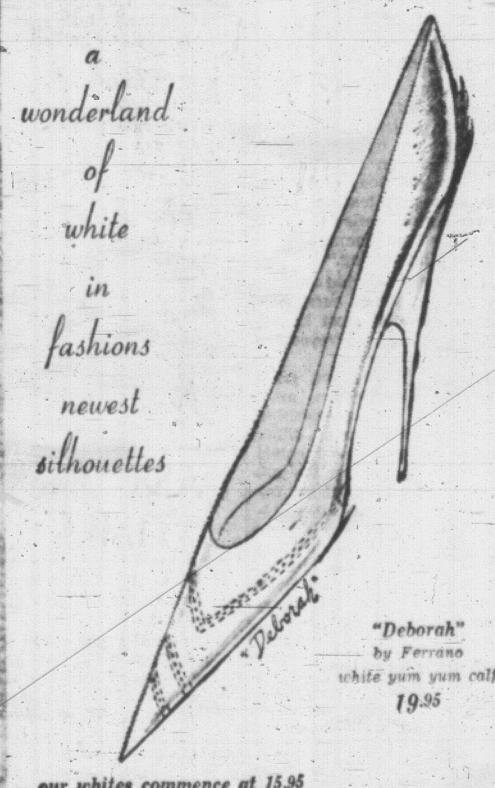

"What are you doing here?" asked Lowman.

The astonished friend, "I thought you couldn't get out."

"I couldn't," the frog replied, "But a truck came along and I had to." Harold Helfer.

I love this little story because it is true to life. Folks find themselves with the most awful problems. We may not try hard enough, what we are in the deepest rut jumped high enough. No matter the most impossible situation from which there seems to be help, in the end, you do escape. We huff, we yourself, must make the effort, we worry and fret and which wins.

This Tasty Casserole Brings Look of Spring

Early spring vegetables are rooms, 2 cups fresh cooked just as tasty as they are pretty. Use them in centre pieces and in quick and flavorful dishes like Mary's Favorite Casserole. Tiny new potatoes and garden fresh peas in a mushroom sauce are topped with onion-flavored crumbs of bite-size toasted corn cereal.

MARY'S FAVORITE CASSEROLE

Two tablespoons butter or margarine, 1 teaspoon onion powder, 3 cups bite-size toasted corn-cereal crushed to 1/2 cup, 2 cans (10 1/2 oz.) cream of mushroom soup, 1/2 cup milk, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon onion juice, dash tabasco sauce, 1 can (2 oz.) mushrooms, 2 cups fresh cooked peas or 1 package (10 oz.) frozen peas, 2 pounds tiny new potatoes, cooked and peeled. Heat oven to slow (325 degrees). Butter a 2-quart baking dish. Melt butter and onion powder over low heat. Stir in cereal crumbs. Heat and stir until crumbs are coated. Combine soup, milk, salt, onion juice and tabasco sauce. Mix well. Rinse frozen peas in warm water. Drain. Add mushrooms, peas and potatoes to soup. Mix well. Pour into baking dish. Top with crumbs. Bake 45 minutes or until bubbly. Yield: Four servings.

Note: May be made a day ahead. Top with crumbs just before baking.

Rowe-Newnham Wedding Held Last Saturday

Rev. T. Griffiths officiated at the wedding last Saturday evening in James Bay United Church when Carol Newnham exchanged marriage vows with Gary J. Rowe.

Iris, lilies and narcissi decorated the church for the ceremony. W. Webster was organist. Parents of the couple are Thomas Newnham, 425 Niagara Street, who gave his daughter in marriage, and Niece of the bride, Miss Cyn. Mrs. Florence Rowe, 1324 Carnes Street.

The bride wore a ballerina-length gown of white lace over pink satin with short-sleeved jacket featuring an Italian neckline. Her bouquet was sweetheart roses, white carnations, and gardenias.

Kenneth Potts was groomsman and the ushers, Jack

Weber and Donald Rasmussen. Reception was held in Connaught Seamen's Institute, James Bay, where the bride's uncle, Charles (Pal) O'Neill, proposed the toast to her happiness.

Prophecy Made—Some Day A Woman Prime Minister

By ELIZABETH FORBES

That Canada, "sometime in prime minister, but with the future," will have a woman prime minister, is not beyond the realm of possibility, believes Miss Judy La Marsh, only Liberal woman MP, who was in Victoria on a brief visit this week.

"It won't be for some time yet," she said. Forbes

With a thoughtful look in her wide open eyes, "but it could come . . . it could come."

Worst hurdle to take would be "to get the nomination from your own party," this interesting young woman believes.

It might be harder, she said, if the voting was direct for a

Role of only Liberal woman member of Parliament sits easily on her shoulders.

"When I first took my seat, all members, even those in my own party, stood off and waited to see what I would do."

"After my maiden speech it was easier, but I still had to convince them that I was not the 'leaning' type and that I did not expect to be spoiled."

Members of parliaments are very independent, she told me, they "run their own show in their own way. They are too busy to look after newcomers and they hate to think they have to be baby-sitters."

"It's taken me six months (since the by-election that elected her) to convince them I like to run my own show, too, but I think I've made it now."

Miss Marsh is a fluent speaker and is called upon to address groups, both men and women, in many parts of the country.

Recently she made a two-and-a-half-day speaking tour in

Gift From Her Sons

By PAT DUFOUR

One of the most excited women in town is 83-year-old Mrs. Mabel Southwell. On Thursday morning she will set off for a three-month stay in the Old Country—a trip she has looked forward to ever since she left there in 1908.

"My two sons, Robert and Jack, gave me this trip as a 'Christmas-box' and it's going to be wonderful to see dear old London again."

Not that Mrs. Southwell has any intention of being inveigled into staying there.

"Not on your life!" she answers firmly.

"After living in Canada, where life is so free and easy, I'll probably find life in England very prim and proper. I'll have to mind my ps and qs!"

Apart from visiting relatives in Peterborough and Essex, Mrs. Southwell intends spending as much time as possible in London.

"I used to know it like the palm of my hand but I guess I'll find it a bit changed after two wars. One place I'm really looking forward to visiting is Madame Tussaud's wax works."

UP-ISLAND

Mrs. Southwell came to Canada after becoming enthused through glowing accounts of Canadian life sent her by a brother, George Warrener (now living in Detroit) and her elder sister, Florence.

"My sister was one of the first settlers in Parksville and is still remembered as the mother of Parksville. She married Frank Parkes. They named Parksville for his father."

Mrs. Southwell met and married John Southwell in the up-island town. They came to Victoria a few years later.

Mrs. Southwell will fly to Montreal on Thursday, where she will embark in the Express of England for a trip "home".

Croydon, where she lived as a girl, will have many surprises for Mrs. Southwell. "When I left, cabbies with horses were the 'order of the day.' It's hard to imagine a busy airport in the quiet town I once knew."

English currency, too, will "take a bit of getting used to." "But," says Mrs. Southwell, "I'm sure it will all come back in a hurry."

Native life of London is not on her list of "musts." "I'm bound to be taken to some shows but after trooping around London all day I'm sure I'll want to be in bed early each night!"

Should her itinerary prove too strenuous, Mrs. Southwell is certain that the sea voyage home will restore all her energy.

St. Margaret's Reunion Luncheon

Mrs. M. E. Godson, school principal, and Mrs. E. Cobbett were special guests at the annual reunion luncheon of the Old Girls' Association of St. Margaret's School, held in the school last Saturday. Other honor guests included Mrs. R. Ormand, school staff representative; Mrs. E. A. McGowan and Mrs. J. Alexis, parents' auxiliary representatives and members of the graduating class.

Mrs. W. G. Flett, association president, proposed the toast to the Queen and Mrs. P. Steel the toast to the school.

Miss Margaret Barton, first school principal, now living in England, was toasted by Mrs. T. G. Ely and the toast to the graduating class was given by Mrs. Peta-Ann McGowan Jackson.

Other executive members at the luncheon were Miss Diana Thompson, vice-president; Mrs. R. R. Wilde, treasurer; Mrs. Kathleen Appleton Irving, secretary; Miss Jennifer Lockyer, social convener; Mrs. Lauder Ramsay, social committee member, and Miss Sara Hughes, publicity.

Following luncheon, the annual meeting was held during which letters of congratulations were read from Miss Barton and association members not able to attend the luncheon.

OF PERSONAL INTEREST

Coffee Party Follows Musical

Following the Musical sponsored by Victoria Business and Professional Women's Club in Oak Bay Beach Hotel on Friday evening, a coffee party will be held in the lower lounge. Hostesses will be Miss Frances Jordan of the hotel, and club president, Miss Ella Brett. Invited to preside at the coffee table are Miss Mary King, Miss Winifred Ellis, Miss Nona Rich and Miss Elsie Richardson. In charge of social arrangements are Mrs. Mabel Curry, Mrs. Mae McClement and Miss Helen Cruickshank. Attending the party will be guest artists, Misses Sally Seymour, Daphne Osborn, Cheryl Morris, Eleanor Gilstein, Anne Perrin, Cheryl Osborn, also Philip Adamson, Michael Adamson, Garry Brandon, Lawrence Eastick, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Van de Goes with their family, Joanna, Tess, Deborah, Philip and Jonathan, Mrs. Vera Barclay and the vocal ensemble, Mr. and Mrs. J. Ingram Smith, members of the club and their friends.

Out-of-Town

Mr. and Mrs. Dave de Bourcier, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hayden, Mrs. Mary Topham came from Vancouver to attend the wedding of Miss Margaret Lou de Bourcier and FO James Corner, RCAF, in First Baptist Church on Saturday. Other out-of-town guests were the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Corner; Mrs. Ethel Chisholm, and Miss Anne Corner, all of Pefferlaw, Ont., and FO Tracy Straub, RCAF, and Mrs. Straub, FO James McBride, FO Andre Pilon and FO P. Besse, all of the RCAF Station, Comox.

Reception

Members of the immediate family of Mrs. Henry Esson Young have issued invitations to a reception to be held in honor of their mother at her home, 1208 Oliver Street, following conferring of degrees and graduation ceremonies on Monday afternoon, May 29.

English currency, too, will "take a bit of getting used to." "But," says Mrs. Southwell, "I'm sure it will all come back in a hurry."

Night life of London is not on her list of "musts." "I'm bound to be taken to some shows but after trooping around London all day I'm sure I'll want to be in bed early each night!"

Should her itinerary prove too strenuous, Mrs. Southwell is certain that the sea voyage home will restore all her energy.

Mrs. M. E. Godson, right, retires as principal of St. Margaret's School for Girls at the end of the present term and Mrs. E. Cobbett, left, already a staff member, takes over. Mrs. Godson will continue to teach at the school.

School colors, red and white, formed theme for decorations, arranged by Mrs. F. R. Nixon and Mrs. E. H. W. Elkington, in the school dining room. Tables had red and white centrepieces and vases of toning flowers. Red and white candles in silver and candleabra completed decor.

Final score was a tie of four all.

about my girl friend. They have become very buddy-buddy. I don't get it all. What do you think they are cooking up?

WORRIED
DEAR WORRIED: Your goose probably.

DEAR ABBY: I am 15 years old and a born flirt. I was always much more mature than girls my age. When I was 11 I told people I was 14 and got away with it.

My mother would never let me go with older boys, but I started liking a boy who was 19. I met him on the sly every chance I got. We went further than we should have, but thank God I never got into trouble. My mother caught me in a movie with him and started watching me like a hawk.

Then he started going with my girl friend. She is also 15. The end of my story is this: She is going to have his baby in June. He skipped town and no one can find him. If it hadn't been for my mother's good sense, I could be having the baby. Please, Abby, tell young girls to stay away from older boys.

THREE'S A CROWD
DEAR CROWD: When your husband goes through medical school and takes special training in pediatrics, listen to what he has to say about raising your baby. In the meantime, ask your doctor and take his advice.

DEAR ABBY: We have a little girl 15 months old and she is still nursing at the breast. I have tried weaning her several times but my husband is afraid she will starve to death. I know this is ridiculous, since she eats solids and also drinks from a glass, but rather than keep up a family feud, I give in. Also, she won't go to sleep unless I nurse her, which brings me to another problem. If I nurse her in a chair and try to lay her down, it wakes her. The only way she'll sleep is for me to go to sleep with her, so she has always slept with us in our bed. My husband wants her in our bed because he is afraid she might choke, freeze or fall out of her own bed. What can I do? Don't tell me to ask my doctor because I would feel foolish.

500-Yard Experience in Pure Misery

Promenade Separates Men, Boys

By ERIK WATT
(Special to The Times)

ISACHSEN, N.W.T. — The day never ends at Polar Base since April arrives. The sun goes sink below the low hills to the northwest, but you can eat indoors at 2 a.m. without electric light.

Twenty-four-hour daylight is a boon to the man in the field, who can catch up on his work at "night" after being weathered in for a day or two... which isn't an unusual occurrence. But to the new arrival at the base camp of the Continental Polar Shelf Project here, the sun which won't set is just another thing he curses while he grows his Arctic legs. He can't sleep.

Polar Base offers a fascinating insight into the white man's Arctic burden—with the surprising speed with which he adapts himself to take the strain.

Most of the men who come here have had experience outdoors on summer field trips... and most of them have softened up during the long winter months in the office. In such soft flesh the Arctic's fangs find a firm grip.

Always the Wind

The man who roughs it by a babbling brook in the mountains in July, loving every minute of it, finds water losing its fascination when it comes in blocks which must be melted. The temperamental oil stove, he quickly learns, is no substitute for a cheery bonfire, either, and during the night will often as not boil away the snow or ice he has so painfully melted for his morning shave... if it doesn't go out and leave him freezing.

And there is always the wind. Fourteen below can feel downright bracing after a couple of days of getting used to 20. But 14 below with a 20-mile-an-hour wind (which isn't bad for Isachsen in April) makes a 500-yard trip an experience in misery.

The Isachsen Promenade is one of the ways in which it's easy to separate the Old Hands from the New Boys, still clinging to the creature comforts of outside.

Course Varies

The Promenade starts about 7 a.m. and continues until 8, when Chief Cook Edgar Anglehart cuts off the bacon and eggs. It follows a three-sided course, starting at the Polar Base sleeping quarters area and winding up at the cookhouse. Far for the course is anywhere from 20 minutes to half an hour, depending on the temperature, the wind, and how late you managed to sleep in.

A lucky few live 300 yards closer to the U.S. American-Joint Arctic Weather Station (JAWS) than their fellows; they have only about 200 yards to cover to the first turn, which is the station itself.

The New Boys usually walk in pairs, dressed to the teeth in their Arctic finery of windproof underwear, windpants, parkas, balaclavas, scarves, duffel socks, mukluks, fur-lined caps and anti-glare goggles.

Off Footwear

This comradely spirit lasts until the first hurdle, the station's inner door, where everyone must take off outer footware. With high-laced mukluks, this can be annoying at 7 a.m. It is particularly annoying if, in extricating one's self from one's mukluks, some more adept chap beats you to the sinks and hot water taps which are the first stop on the Promenade.

LENGTH OF BEARD indicates length of service for members of Shelf Project pictured tucking into big meal to satisfy Arctic-sharpened appetites. If beard method fails, old-timers can be spotted by hair flopping over the collar line. Isachsen is short of barbers and warm water for shaving.

Latecomers add to the confusion of pulling the mukluks on again in the narrow hallway, ablutions completed. And now the second leg of the Promenade lies ahead: a couple of hundred feet outdoors to the transient barracks, at the far end of which is the only heated bathroom in Isachsen.

Towel Freezes

By the third leg, cheery greetings to inbound strollers have become less common. The cookhouse lies ahead and Edgar Anglehart is a punctual craftsman. Besides, the wet towel around your neck is freezing.

The old hands disdain the Promenade. If they're going to shave they've made sure the snow bucket atop the stove was full before they turned in. Then, stolidly contemptuous of the weather, they march downhill to a primitive gazebo near the cookhouse.

There's ice on the seat, but it has pink paper.

The average new boy is an old hand in a couple of days and, as such, fully qualified to join in the breakfast repartee. This is normally confined to three themes:

Always Needed

In Isachsen, hardly anybody talks about the weather. If it isn't bad, it nearly always looks as if it's going to be.

They Run Wild

Occasionally there is talk about the Cowboys. These are a mysterious group of people who roar around on auto-boggans, Bombardier snowmobiles, the camp's Nodwell scout truck which has three-foot-wide caterpillar treads—and even the JAWS station's tractors, running wild until something gives and Bob McKay has a new job.

Some claim the Cowboys do these things because there are no movies, girls or other diversions at Isachsen. But since nobody will admit he has ever actually seen a Cowboy, much less talked to one, this is hard to prove.

The fishing's lousy at Isachsen—and the ice is six to nine feet thick until breakup in July, anyway. There are three white foxes which hang around the garbage dump, and a polar bear with very bad manners strayed into camp last year, creating a fair amount of excitement until someone fetched a rifle.

The remainder are divided pretty evenly between people who insist on knowing what's happened to that winch (delayed in transit), those tents (just never showed up) or spare parts (they're in Churchill or Yellowknife), and people who want to know when Bob McKay, the long-suffering maintenance chief, is going to have this fixed or that thawed out.

There are game birds later in the season. But the Queen Elizabeth Islands, of which Ellef Ringnes Island is part, is a game preserve. Only Eskimos, at Polar Base are Andrew and Phillipposie, who handle the project's two dog teams.

Most of Polar Base's wildlife activity is provided by a pair of husky pups named Ellef and Amund (the latter in honor of neighboring Amund Ringnes Island). One of them—no one is really sure which—is black. The other is black with white paws. Since both come when you call "Here, Amund!" or "Here, Ellef!" the names don't seem too important.

They are a source of great fun—provided you're not trying to get anything done, which is when they most often appear to entertain you. And Ellef—or is it Amund?—is learning to howl, too.

All in Same Fix

There are piles of magazines and paperback novels, mail service is surprisingly good (Ellef Ringnes has had a lot of transient aircraft this year), and there is a bond of camaraderie among the Prisoners of the Polar Base, all of whom are in the same fix-up north without an Otter.

But two days in Polar Base is usually enough for anyone.

Most of the men who come here expect to spend six weeks doing specific jobs, though some will stay until September. They didn't come up to Isachsen to catch up on their reading, and the permanent polar ice on which they'll do much of their work—breaks up and shifts around just like any sea ice does in summer.

And when the word comes that the Otter—or one of the project's four helicopters—is free, and a party can get to its destination at last, speed of packing rivals the speed of light.

Nutrament

for everyone who skips or skimps on meals

When do you drink Nutrament?

Whenever activity has made you skip or skimp on a meal. Or when you need a supplement to a meal that may be lacking in proper nutrition. You can drink Nutrament between meals or as a bedtime snack... anytime.

What makes Nutrament so nourishing?

Nutrament has been developed by the makers of PABLUM, specialists in quality products through nutritional research. Each tin of Nutrament supplies you with 409 calories. It is formulated to give you nutrients in proportions generally accepted as desirable: 20 grams of good quality protein, 50 grams of carbohydrate, 13.3 grams of fat and all the vitamins and minerals known to be essential for good nutrition.

Who can use Nutrament?

Anybody who can eat the food a normal, healthy person does. Because it's so pleasant and easy to drink, you may give it to your children as a supplementary food and even to older people who may be lacking in appetite at mealtime.

This nourishing light meal costs 45 cents*

Hot or cold, chocolate or vanilla Nutrament is a complete light meal in a glass, enjoyable to people of any age. It is not a "discipline food" or dietary—and doesn't taste like one. Meal-skippers and meal-skimpers, rejoice—Nutrament is here! In your nearby store now!

SOLUTION FRIDAY

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—It's sort of a religious story, not quite what you expect to hear from Broadway or Hollywood.

Danny Thomas was pacing, eating candy, smoking a cigar, asking if I'd have a drink—and then he was down on the floor of his suite at the Statler Hilton which we used to call "the Pennsylvania."

"There she is!" He was on his knees before a large sketch of the $4,000,000 St. Jude's Research Hospital at Memphis, which is to be opened in the fall. "This October will be six years since we started.... It seems like a lot of years."

"I remember you starting it," I said.

ALL WILL DIE

"Sure! I took Dinah Shore down and we did a show. This side here will have all of Walt Disney's cartoons," Danny said, pointing. "And the sad part is that all these leukemia-stricken children here will die—until that cure we hope some day to find."

"Tell the story again," I asked Danny.

"Well, I'm not really religious. I go to Mass on Sunday....

"I was busted in Detroit. I'd never be more than a $2 beer garden entertainer."

WIFE CURED

"A man was drinking pretty heavily. He was celebrating his wife getting cured of cancer. He wanted to tell me about praying to St. Jude, the Patron Saint of the Hopeless."

"I was bored. I didn't want to listen. But he made me, and gave me the little leaflet. I've got it framed now."

"I went to church next day—in the middle of the week—and prayed to St. Jude, asking for a sign if I was to get out of show business. I promised if I made good, I'd build a shrine."

"I can't say I ever got any sign. But the next day I drove my wife and kid to Toledo. And while I was there, I heard that Earl Eby, an actor I'd worked with, was getting to be a big man in Chicago radio."

RADIO JOBS

"I dared to leave Detroit for Chicago. I stayed with Eby, got a lot of one-shot radio jobs, got to playing 'the 5100 Club. That's where Abe Lastfogel of Marlene Dietrich'll sing her famous "Lili Marlene" in "Judgment at Nuremberg.... Brigitte Bardot's husband, Jacques Charrier, will play Charles Boyer's son in a French film.... Actor Jim Backus' new cafe act is being written by his wife Henny.... Harpo Marx turned down a bid to make a record—says he'll stay publicly silent throughout his career.

EARL'S PEARLS: A man used to go on a diet because he couldn't fit into his suit; now it may be because he doesn't fit into his car.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: One result of the space flights, we're told, is to give Bob Hope a new spot to entertain troops.

WISH I'D SAID THAT: In our modern jet age, the size of this country is only five hours wide and two hours deep—La Quote.

Dick Gregory mentioned Pres. Kennedy's request that the press not print military secrets: "It's gettin' so a soldier fires a rocket, then tunes in a ghostly greeting. The sound of your voice is carried on jogging molecules of air. The jogging starts in your voice box by a vibrating flap of skin. This vibrates the air around you and it passes the vibration on and on, farther and farther away."

The sound fans out getting fainter as it goes. If it meets a solid wall, the jogging molecules can go no farther. If they still have some energy left, the vibration is turned around and comes back again.

An echo is a burst of bouncing sound. When you shout at the face of a cliff or "hallo" in a hollow gorge, your voice comes back to your ears with a ghostly greeting. The sound of your voice is carried on jogging molecules of air. The jogging starts in your voice box by a vibrating flap of skin. This vibrates the air around you and it passes the vibration on and on, farther and farther away.

As I left the car, I started around that water puddle.

THAT'S MY CAR AND THAT'S WHERE I WAS PARKED.

Muscular Torso
Easily More-So

VANCOUVER (CP) — A university professor has come to the aid of weaklings with a yen for strength but a dislike for exercise.

A routine taking slightly more than a minute a day would double their strength in 20 days, says Dr. Max Howell, assistant professor of physical education at the University of British Columbia.

Dr. Howell said Tuesday the series of 13 muscular-contractions were devised by two German physiologists after 10 years of research.

"It's amazing," said Dr. Howell. "We researched the program because we frankly didn't believe what we heard about it."

Dr. Howell and two assistants put 30 students on the routine and compared results with 30 others who took half-hour work-outs lifting weights three times a week.

Results showed the students on the contraction exercises gained strength faster than the weight lifters.

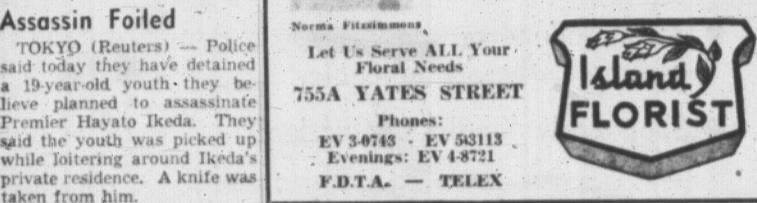

The tests produced an average increase in strength of five per cent a day. After 20 days, when strength had doubled, the increase levelled off and the new muscle power was maintained by going through the routine two or three times a week.

The routine takes 78 seconds a day.

31 NEW PARTY CANDIDATE

Behan's Buddy Nominated

TORONTO (CP) — Eamonn Martin, old school chum of boisterous playright Brendan Behan, was nominated Monday night to represent the New Party in the Eglington provincial by-election here.

Mr. Martin, a 38-year-old Toronto Transit Commission inspector, acted as bail bondsman and hangover nurse when his hard-drinking Irish friend clashed with the law during a recent Toronto visit.

Mr. Martin left Ireland eight years ago "because I couldn't see the point of rearing children for export. I have five."

Interested in left-wing politics, he intended to go to Saskatchewan because it has a CCF government. He made it as far as Toronto where he took a job as a janitor with the TTC.

No date has been set for the

by-election, made necessary by the death of Hon. W. J. Dunlop, minister without portfolio in the Progressive Conservative government, and for mer minister of education.

New Home Recipe

• Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naranc Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Naranc Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly blot disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active. Adv.

PLANE TOLL 78
IN SAHARA CRASH

ALGIERS (AP) — The wreckage of a missing four-engined Super Constellation was found in the Sahara Desert today and Air France said there were no survivors among the 78 people aboard, including 69 passengers.

Search craft found the wreckage smashed into lonely sand dunes of the Sahara about 75 miles north of the oil field of Edjele.

An Air France spokesman said among the passengers were the mother, wife and three children of Alan Lukens, U.S. chargé d'affaires in Bangui, Central African Republic. U.S. Embassy officials said Lukens apparently stayed behind while the family took a vacation.

Labor's Test
On 'Bill 42'
Before Court

(Special to the Times)

VANCOUVER — A local oil workers' union has challenged B.C.'s new labor legislation in the courts as being beyond provincial jurisdiction and a violation of Canada's Bill of Rights.

The union's lawyers today were to notify Attorney-General Robert Bonner of their action.

A statement of claim seeking right of dues checkoff from Imperial Oil Ltd. was filed Tuesday in the Supreme Court registry by Local 16-601 of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union.

ULTRA VIRES

The statement says B.C.'s "Bill 42" passed at this year's legislative session is ultra vires.

The new law includes prohibition of the use of union dues for political purposes and requires unions to file a statutory declaration that they will obey this in order to obtain checkoff rights.

Imperial cancelled the checkoff April 15.

With the statement of claim, filed by the law firm of Shulman, Tupper, Worrall and Berger, was a notice of motion that the union will seek an interlocutory order from the Supreme Court May 23 for reinstatement of the checkoff until the court test of Bill 42 is decided.

FREEDOM CURB

The notice adds: "The aforementioned legislation interferes with fundamental political freedom."

It adds: "The aforementioned legislation infringes the right of trade union members in B.C. to freedom of association, contrary to the Canadian Bill of Rights."

The law also abridges civil rights of union members outside the province, and affects election of members of Parliament, it says.

Saskatchewan Premier Tommy Douglas said in Victoria last week that the province is trying to halt political contributions to federal political campaigns, which are outside B.C. jurisdiction.

IMPOSSIBLE

The union's notices say that it is impossible to sign a statutory declaration that none of its membership funds — checkoff or otherwise — be used politically.

Some of its funds — $2 a month — go to international headquarters in Denver, says the union.

It also admits that it has made direct political contributions to election candidates "and may reasonably be expected to continue to do so in the future."

It says that it has agreed

Algeria Peace Talks
Set to Open May 20

PARIS (AP) — The French government and the leaders of the Algerian nationalist rebellion today agreed to begin their long-awaited peace negotiations May 20.

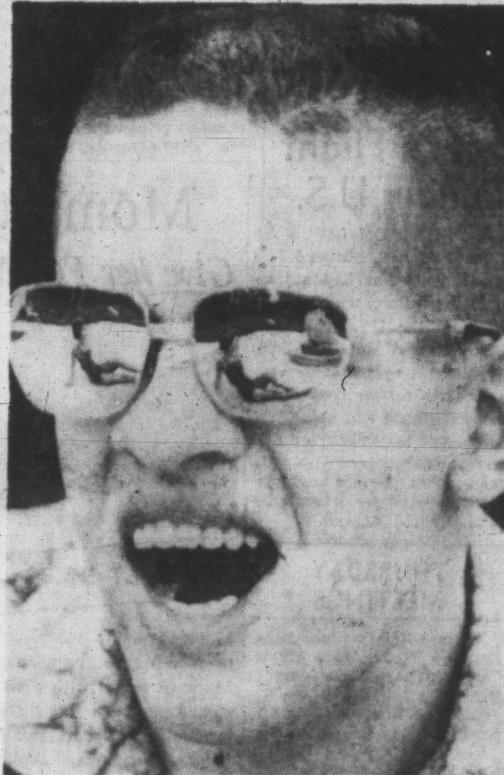

The announcement was made simultaneously by the French government in Paris and the rebel government-in-exile in Tunis.

The talks will be held in Evian-les-Bains on the French front Charles de Gaulle.

NATO TALKS END

Disarmament
Top Objective

(CP From AP-Reuters)

OSLO, Norway — The 15-nation North Atlantic Treaty Organization pledged today to continue its effort for world disarmament under effective international control.

A communiqué issued at the end of a three-day conference by the alliance's foreign ministers here said world disarmament by stages remained one of the principal objectives of NATO's member governments.

The communiqué also declared that a settlement to the problem of a divided Germany, including Berlin, can be found "only on the basis of self-determination."

The foreign ministers reaffirmed their determination to maintain the freedom of West Berlin against any Communist threat.

He told reporters documents and evidence seized during the recent arrest of 20 Communist suspects in the area showed an "outside power" was supporting the plot.

The communiqué said that if Russia decided to renounce its agreements with the Western Allies on Berlin by signing a peace treaty with Communist East Germany, this would "in no way deprive the other parties of their rights or relieve the Soviet Union of its obligations."

HOPE TALKS RESUME

The communiqué expressed the hope that proposed talks between the United States and Russia would enable the resumption of East-West disarmament negotiations.

The foreign ministers rapped the Soviet government for its "negative attitude" at Geneva toward a new Anglo-American plan for banning nuclear tests.

The communiqué said the foreign ministers hoped Russia would "move promptly to join in an effective treaty as a first and significant step toward disarmament."

The communiqué said the ministers were "aware of the intensified efforts of the Communist bloc to foment and to exploit conflicts and to extend its domination over an ever-increasing area" and "reaffirmed their resolve to meet this challenge."

They instructed the NATO permanent council in Paris to continue its studies of all aspects of the military strength of the alliance aimed at improving its deterrent and defensive power.

At the same time the ministers declared that they are ready "to make their contribution toward achieving an equitable and just settlement of outstanding political questions."

The communiqué described work to raise the social and material standards of the world's less-developed areas as one of the "major challenges."

3-WAY TALKS

LAOS REBELS

HONG KONG (Reuters) — Pro-Communist Pathet Lao rebels today demanded that the right-wing Laotian government accept tripartite talks to draw up rules for a cease-fire in the kingdom's civil war.

Pathet Lao radio, quoted by the New China news agency, said that until the cease-fire agreement was reached by the three Laotian factions — Pathet Lao, neutrals and rightists — "conditions are naturally lacking for the operation of the International Truce Commission on Laos.

VIENTIANE (AP) — Officials of the international control commission flew to the rebel-held Plain of Jars today in an effort to put the Laotian truce on firm footing before the opening of the Geneva conference on Laos Friday.

Before leaving, chairman Samar Sen of India said he has found the situation in Laos confused but "there are encouraging signs."

Sen declined to say, however, when he felt the commission could verify a trustworthy cease-fire — a condition the Western powers have laid down for attending the 14-nation Geneva meeting.

"We are going up to make contact and find out how the situation is," he said.

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain is still planning on the assumption that the 14-nation Geneva conference on Laos will open Friday as planned, a foreign office spokesman said today.

He said the British delegation headed by Foreign Secretary Lord Home, plans to fly to Geneva Thursday.

But he told reporters it is a definite condition for British attendance at the conference that the three-nation truce supervisory commission now in Laos should report the existence of a de facto cease-fire in the civil war before it opened.

KATMANDU, Nepal (Reuters) — Sir Edmund Hillary, conqueror of Mount Everest, today was reported to be walking down from his 21,000-foot-high Himalayan expedition's camp after suffering a mild stroke Sunday.

A report received here from his expedition site on Nepal's Mount Makalu said Hillary, 41, suffered a "cerebral vascular accident" but his condition was described as not serious.

A cable sent by Hillary to his wife in Auckland, New Zealand, said he had a black-out, probably due to attempting to acclimatize himself to high altitudes too quickly. This prevented him from joining the assault on Mount Makalu, he said.

A radio message received by the Nepal government did not say whether Hillary was returning to Katmandu or staying somewhere in the Himalayan area to guide his expedition members still on Makalu.

Rights of Senate
Point at Issue

By TOM GOULD

(Times Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — There is a strong possibility the government will call a snap federal election over an issue now boiling up in the Canadian Senate.

The usually quiet Senate chamber has been the scene of increasingly sharp exchanges in recent days in a battle over government amendments to the Customs Tariff Act.

Liberal senators, who have at's right to amend the bill.

He replied:

"Take it as a challenge. This government has been very reasonable with respect to amendments made by the Senate, but no government can accept an amendment to this bill."

That is my final word."

Senator Brunt did not speak off-the-cuff. Some hours before he made his statement in the House, he informed several reporters who work for Conservative newspapers to take note of his speech.

Senator Brunt was asked if he was challenging the Senate's right to amend the bill.

Friend Indeed in Times Of Need: the Sally Ann

By LES MILLIN
"For Christ—to witness and to win."

With this motto as a guide, The Salvation Army has for many years carried out its work of comfort and mercy in the Victoria area, bringing relief to the afflicted and the unfortunate wherever possible.

Its work includes hospital visitations, rehabilitation for alcoholics, correctional services with criminals and juvenile delinquents, running a missing persons bureau, supplying both permanent and transient hostel accommodation for men as well as assistance in such emergencies as floods and mining disasters.

In addition, the Victoria branch operates in the city the Victoria Sunset Lodge which has given devoted care to aged women from various parts of Vancouver Island. It has a total capacity of 30, and is one of the 132 such lodges operated by the Army in many countries.

New Sunset Lodge

The Salvation Army is campaigning during the month of May for funds to enable it to build a $200,000 Sunset Lodge for both men and women. It will include 120 single rooms, as well as 10 suites for married couples.

Reading and television lounges, a library, outdoor recreation areas and a 6-bed infirmary are among its projected facilities. Twenty-four hour supervision will ensure tranquillity for the aged guests.

The Mary Moore Home and hospital at Cobble Hill, now in its second year of operation under the Salvation Army, has supplied a similar service for 59 aged persons within the last year.

Employment Bureau

Through a free employment bureau, the Army attempts to find jobs for unemployed men, and its social service department provides beds, meals, clothing and furniture either free, or at a price within the reach of those who need them. Over 10,000 beds were provided by the Salvation Army last year, and better than 300 jobs were found for unemployed men.

Collaborating with Salvation Army headquarters in every part of the globe, the Immigration Department of the Army helps in the transfer and settling of persons and families from one country to another.

Since 1951, the Victoria Harbor Light Corps has worked to rehabilitate alcoholics. One of five such in Canada, it has helped more than 3,000 men to a better way of life, businessmen and young people as well as the homeless men who are on the last mile of suffering.

Emergency Plan

When disaster strikes, the Salvation Army can render prompt on the spot assistance through its "emergency plan" blue prints which are so designed that relief work can go into action at a moment's notice.

When fire struck Nanaimo's Chinatown, clothing, blankets and food were distributed at

VLA Change Welcomed By Veterans

OTTAWA (CP) — Veterans Minister Churchill announced Tuesday new regulations are being drafted to reduce the minimum size of Veterans Land Act holdings to half an acre from two acres.

The new regulations will also permit veterans to dispose of part of their larger holdings, he said.

Mr. Churchill said date on which the new regulations would take effect would be announced later.

He said veterans would be granted permission to reduce the size of their holdings under the Veterans Land Act in most cases.

H. W. Herridge (CCF—Kootenay West) said the announcement would be welcome to thousands of veterans who wanted to take up land under the VLA but could not get the two acres required in the vicinity of most large cities where they wanted to live.

once, and headquarters in Toronto immediately made available emergency funds to give instant assistance to those in need.

As well as emergency help, the Salvation Army contributed to the Nanaimo Chinatown rehabilitation fund.

Visits to police court, visits to prison, assistance to prisoners in securing parole—these are only a few of the services provided by the Army's correctional services officer. Ex-prisoners are assisted with meals, beds, fares so that they could return home or look for work.

In the last year, the Salvation Army's total of letters written and phone calls made on behalf of prisoners came to 202.

Visits to police court and prison totalled 332, and 20 visits were made to the families of prisoners.

Salvation Army hospitals for unwed mothers cared for 66 girls from Vancouver Island during the last year, out of a total of 568 who made use of the hospital services. A new wing was added to the Salvation Army's Grace Hospital in Vancouver which will give accommodation for an additional 30 beds and 32 bassinets, as well as providing labor, delivery, recovery and operating rooms.

These services are administered largely by dedicated officers of the Salvation Army who have made social welfare their life work.

The necessary funds, however, must come from the public. A certain amount is received in bequests every year, but the annual Red Shield campaign must supply the bulk of the funds, and the Red Shield has only one source of income—the public.

CHINA, AUSTRALIA IN BIG GRAIN DEAL

HONG KONG (UPI) — Australia has signed a one-year contract with Red China to deliver $135 million worth of grain, a sale which would exceed the bumper deal with Canada for one-year delivery, reliable sources said today.

Australian Wheat Board chairman Christopher J. Perrett, just back from Peking, flatly declined to comment on the report.

The deal was to have included wheat as well as other grain.

Although Canada's $360 million grain deal with Peking was larger, it also was spread over a three to five year period. Australia's contract will be fulfilled this year, sources said.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Dr. R. A. Holtum of Victoria was re-elected president of the B.C. Naturopathic Physician Association at an annual northwest convention held in Portland, Oregon, last weekend.

Other officers elected were: Dr. D. J. Kirkbride, Nanaimo, vice-president; Dr. F. W. Loffler and Dr. A. L. Russell of Vancouver, board members.

A local senior citizens organization has asked for regulation of ambulance rates.

Request was sent to Health Minister Eric Martin and Mayor Percy Scurrah by the Senior Citizens' Campaign Council.

The organization complained that rates vary from $12 to $20 for a run to the hospital. It also claimed that in one case, an elderly woman who suffered a heart attack was taken to hospital by ambulance but "en route the driver stopped and asked if she would pay the ambulance service the $15."

Pleading guilty to theft over $50, Keith Ford of Victoria was remanded in city police court today until Friday for sentence.

He admitted stealing an outboard motor, controls, battery and gasoline from a vacant lot adjoining Harbor Marine. The goods belonged to Gordon Bransen.

William Clarence McKinney, 19, HMCS Naden, was fined $20 in city police court today for being a minor in possession of liquor.

Saanich public works committee Tuesday approved taking $30,500 from general revenue to construct storm drains on Craigmillar Avenue and Kathleen Street.

Drainage construction will also be carried out at Hampton Park at a cost of $3,000.

Even its competitors like the popular government ferry service between Tsawwassen and Swartz Bay.

Black Ball Ferries today inaugurated a package tour by bus and ferry from Vancouver, to Victoria, Nanaimo and return to Vancouver.

The inaugural run was welcomed by Mayor Percy Scurrah—as it arrived at Swartz Bay aboard a government ferry on its first leg of the tour!

Launching of the world's largest, log-carrying barge by Yarrows Ltd. will take place at 4 p.m. Monday in Esquimalt Harbor.

Built for MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Co., the carrier will be christened Haida Carrier by Mrs. J. V. Clyne, wife of the firm's chairman.

When completed, the craft will be self-loading and dumping, will measure 340 feet overall and 64 feet beam, will carry 1,500,000 board feet of logs and a 20-foot boom tug. It is designed for the Queen Charlotte-Juan de Fuca run.

George A. Riley of Vancouver was fined $250 in city police court Tuesday after conviction for impaired driving. Magistrate William Ostler also ordered his licence suspended for four months.

Women's auxiliary of Centennial United Church will sponsor a Meistersingers concert in the church tonight at 8.15 p.m.

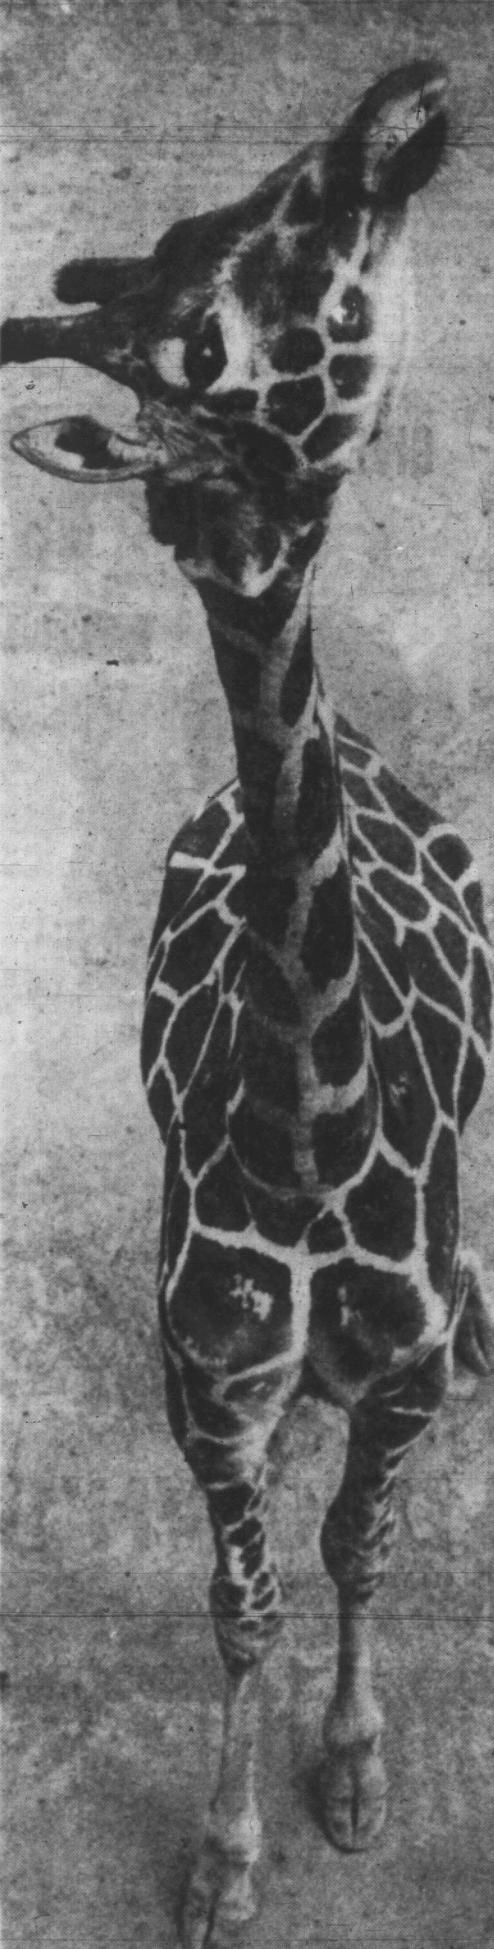

Talk about accomplished facts.

City council Thursday will hold routine public hearing to find out if there are any objections against a rezoning application by Imperial Motor Hotel Ltd. so as to erect a motel at Discovery and Douglas Streets.

If there are objections, it may be difficult to hear them over the noise of hammering and concrete pouring at the site—where workmen already are constructing the third storey of the $750,000 development begun a month ago.

First of a series of lectures on "art in travel" will be given by Mrs. P. S. Widdup at the Victoria Art Gallery at 8.30 tonight. She will show 150 slides on lands and art monuments met with in travels through Africa, India and the Far East.

Dr. J. E. Schinbein will show a film on mouth-to-mouth respiration at the next regular meeting of Langford PTA to be held in the school's activity room, Monday, at 8 p.m.

BEAUTIES ARE BUSY

Queen Contest Steps Up Pace

By HAL JONES

With arrangements for Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce's fair next week just about complete, the race to pick "Miss Victoria 1961" has shifted into high gear.

The 10 finalists for the queen contest are busy preparing their respective presentations for the benefit of the five-member panel of judges.

FASHION SHOW

All 10 will appear on the stage of the arena each night from Monday through Friday to take part in a fashion show. Each girl will model a bathing suit, an outdoors outfit, a cotton summer dress and a formal dress.

In addition two girls will appear each night before the judges in talent presentation.

To enable Times readers to make their own choice as to who should be the new Miss Victoria, the contestants will be presented in pairs—in alphabetical order—starting today.

Record List of 50 Yachts Ready for Swiftsure Race

Three City Vessels Enter 136-Mile Ocean Classic

Elo, a Danish-built sloop, owned by A. B. Sanderson and skippered by Ned Ashe with a crew of four.

The tax rate remains at 41 mills, but few people will cheer.

"When it appeared we were going to have a one-mill increase I spoke to a number of people about it," Mr. Murdoch said.

"The feeling seemed to be, 'what's one mill...'"

The prospective increase was wiped out by a last-minute provincial order-in-council which changed the timing in use of a federal grant to municipalities.

Hiker Quits, Apologizes To Victoria

Attempt by two Victoria Jaycees to walk across the country, coast-to-coast, has ended in Montreal—875 miles and two months after it started in Halifax.

Blaine Tringham, surviving member of the duo who set out to hike 4,000 miles to publicize Victoria, announced Tuesday he is giving up.

His partner, Don Johnson, was forced to drop out early in the project with leg trouble.

APOLOGIZES

A terse wire from Blaine received today said:

"I wish to apologize to the people of Victoria who were behind this project; I only hope they will be able to allow for my weakness and accept my failure. My decision to continue alone when Don was forced to drop out was a foolhardy one. I have no excuses, just apologies."

Griff Layne, head of the organizing Jaycee committee, said today he was proud of the boys getting as far as they did.

BAD WEATHER

"They had to go through 875 miles of the worst possible weather," he said. "While they didn't succeed in walking across Canada, they did a wonderful job on publicity."

The pair carried "Follow the birds to Victoria" slogans through three provinces.

"Never has the city of Victoria received so much publicity for so little money," he said.

He announced that membership in the society has grown to more than 250 members and the junior society to 104.

NEW OFFICERS

Recreation Minister Earle Westwood, J. W. Eastman and George Hardy were elected honorary presidents, with P. J. Croft, vice-president; Miss Irene Latimer, secretary; Mrs. Eleanor Davidson, treasurer; A. R. Davidson and G. Clifford Carl, editors of The Victoria Naturalist.

Chairmen of groups: Mrs. D. Stirling and Mrs. H. Matheson, program; T. R. Briggs and D. Stirling, ornithology; Miss M. C. Melburn and Dr. C. Lowe, botany; Dr. John A. Chapman, entomology; Dr. Clifford Carl, zoology; Miss Enid Lemon, audubon; Mrs. G. E. Soulsby, federation; Mrs. J. R. Parris, conservation; Freeman King and Mrs. K. Osborne, Juniors.

ESSAY WINNERS

Nancy Chapman was named winner of the junior essay contest for children of 13 and over. Lorne Edwards and Jacqueline von Keltengen received honorable mention.

"We've had about a dozen colonies of honey bees—virtually wiped out in the past month," said Mr. Scholz. "It's the worst year I can remember."

Colonies are starving to death in their hives as the field bees die of poisons sprayed on blossoms and other food sources.

All signs point to the work of weekend gardening enthusiasts getting carried away with the powerful poisons like Malathion.

"Gardeners could help the situation by not spraying flowers that are in bloom or about to bloom," said Mr. Scholz. "Spraying in the evenings, when bees are not flying, also would help."

COMMERCIAL GRADS 'DEFICIENT'

Junior Beatniks Beat the Boss And Their Spelling's Atroshus

The survey is the product of the Noma research committee headed by G. W. Moulton and including Mrs. E. C. McCormick, J. W. Porteous, S. T. Fitzpatrick and D. S. Tuck.

INTERESTING

Releasing the report today, local branch president I. D. Lachlan stated: "While expressing no opinions, either pro or con, on the Chant report, the reactions of Victoria businessmen to teaching of the 'three Rs' as reflected in the questions and comments are certainly interesting."

Questioned on what subjects for the high school curriculum were considered most important, the firms surveyed answered in this order:

English composition, grammar and punctuation, arithmetic, spelling, typewriting, shorthand, penmanship, filing, simple business fundamentals, bookkeeping, meeting the public and operating office machines.

Asked whether the appearance and deportment of high school graduates was satisfactory, the majority of the firms polled answered in the affirmative but some had reservations.

JUNIOR BEATNIKS

Among the comments:

"Sloppy hair not well groomed, too many sweaters, pay little attention to shoes, try to be too glamorous."

"Some appear to interview properly attired and later look like junior beatniks, but these are exceptions rather than the rule."

Main reason given for beginning clerical workers failing in their jobs was "lack of interest" followed by "lack of ability" and "poor attitude."

Several firms made these suggestions for bolstering the commercial curriculum: a short course in telephone etiquette and encouragement of interest and enjoyment, courtesy and punctuality.

Many comments were received on attitudes toward jobs which suggested that too many young people are interested only in the pay and the hours, and show little sense of ultimate values in their job seeking.

DO JUST ENOUGH

"It is the exception rather than the rule to find young employees who want or request to take on extra responsibilities," stated one employer. "They will do what is required, day by day, but do not think of accumulating knowledge and building security for the future."

"Girls in particular," this employer added, "have a tendency to think of their positions as a temporary measure pending marriage; many have a tendency to assume all good things will come whether they apply themselves or not."

ASK The TIMES

Q. What is the crypt burial cost in Christ Church Cathedral? A. L.

Under the west end of the Cathedral there is an area where ashes of the deceased may repose. There are about 200 there now, with space left. Selection is made by application with provision of statistics of the deceased. Cost is $100 per niche, which includes a simple black engraving on white marble. It includes the name, year of birth and death, and nothing else.

Q. How do you say "the check, please," in Italian? A. L.

A. Il conto, per piacere.

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Some of the most stunning pictures of animals and birds are on display at the Victoria Public Library.

They are part of a Popular Photography International Exhibition featuring about 100 prints, representing examples of contemporary photography from all parts of the world.

All prints are prize-winning photographs in the annual Popular Photography $25,000 International Picture Contest, one of the biggest photographic events in the United States.

The show is on until Saturday of next week.

The bird prints include some spectacular shots of sea-gulls in flight and geese. One clever animal picture portrays an alley cat about to rummage through a garbage can.

The exhibition also covers a broad range of other subject matter, such as dramatic and human interest photography, landscapes and outstanding examples of portraiture. Most prints are in black and white.

The color photograph, "A Girl With A Rose," which won first prize, is also included in the collection.

Entries come from Sweden, Japan, Italy, Denmark, Canada and the U.S. There are only two Canadian prints in the collection.

Thirty per cent of the entries were from foreign countries, the rest from the United States. But by the time preliminary screening was completed, the international tables were turned—60 per cent of the survivors were foreigners and 40 per cent United States.

First of a series of lectures on "art in travel" will be given by Mrs. P. S. Widdup at the Victoria Art Gallery at 8.30 tonight. She will show 150 slides on lands and art monuments met with in travels through Africa, India and the Far East.

10 Flee as Survey Ship Catches Fire

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — A seismicographic survey ship caught fire in the Gulf of Mexico today and her crew of 10 men hastily abandoned ship lest explosives in the hold blow up.

Canadiens Trade Turner to Hawks

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens today announced completion of a deal involving players belonging to three National Hockey League clubs.

Canadiens have dealt defenceman Bob Turner, 27, to Chicago Black Hawks for left winger Fred Hultz, 21, leading goal scorer in the Eastern Professional Hockey League in 1960-61.

Canadiens also sold the contracts of centre Cliff Pennington and rightwinger Terry Gray to Boston Bruins for an undisclosed amount of cash and forwards Willie O'Ree and Stanley Maxwell.

Threat Made to Blow Up Royal York

TORONTO (CP) — An unsigned letter today warned that the Royal York Hotel, where 1,200 employees have been on strike 16 days, will be blown up at 11:30 a.m. Friday.

Police are investigating but a spokesman for the Hotel and Restaurant Workers' Union (CLC) said the writer "must be a nut."

NATO TALKS END

Disarmament
Top Objective

(CP From AP-Reuters)

OSLO, Norway — The 15-nation North Atlantic Treaty Organization pledged today to continue its effort for world disarmament under effective international control.

A communiqué issued at the end of a three-day conference by the alliance's foreign ministers here said world disarmament by stages remained one of the principal objectives of NATO's member governments.

Boost Due
In Vets'
Allowances

Plans for an increase in the federal war veterans' allowances were announced here today by Veterans Affairs Minister Gordon Churchill.

Mr. Churchill, here to campaign for Conservative candidate George Chatterton in Esquimalt-Saanich, said that eligibility for the allowance also will be widened.

At present 47,000 Canadians receive allowances, 12,000 of them in B.C.

Present allowance for a single man is $70 a month provided he earns no more than $20 a month steady income and $600 a year casual income, has liquid assets not exceeding $1,000 and a house not exceeding $8,000 value.

$126 MONTHLY

A married man gets $120 a month provided he earns less than $25 a month steady, $900 a year casual, and has no more than $2,000 liquid assets and a house the same value as a single man.

"It's only a partial return-by-the nation for services rendered," said Mr. Churchill.

"We will continue to survey the field with regard to other acts and see what further revisions are required."

Amount and timing of the increases will be decided later in Parliament, he said.

Mr. Churchill speaks tonight at 8 in Sanscha Hall, Sidney, with Mr. Chatterton. He was to tour Veterans' Hospital this afternoon.

Labor's Test
On 'Bill 42'
Before Court

(Special to the Times)

VANCOUVER — A local oil workers' union has challenged B.C.'s new labor legislation in the courts as being beyond provincial jurisdiction and a violation of Canada's Bill of Rights.

The union's lawyers today were to notify Attorney-General Robert Bonner of their action.

A statement of claim seeking right of dues checkoff from Imperial Oil Ltd. was filed Tuesday in the Supreme Court registry by Local 16-601 of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union.

ULTRA VIRES

The statement says B.C.'s "Bill 42" passed at this year's legislative session is ultra vires.

The new law includes prohibition of the use of union dues for political purposes and requires unions to file a statutory declaration that they will obey this in order to obtain checkoff rights.

Imperial cancelled the checkoff April 15 when no affidavit was submitted.

With the statement of claim filed by the law firm of Shulman, Tupper, Worrall and Berger, was a notice of motion that the union will seek an interlocutory order from the Supreme Court May 23 for reinstatement of the checkoff until the court test of Bill 42 is decided.

FREEDOM CURB

The notice adds: "The aforementioned legislation interferes with fundamental political freedom."

It adds: "The aforementioned legislation infringes the right of trade union members in B.C. to freedom of association, contrary to the Canadian Bill of Rights."

The law also abridges civil rights of union members outside the province, and affects election of members of Parliament, it says.

Saskatchewan Premier Tommy Douglas said in Victoria last week that the province is trying to halt political contributions to federal political campaigns, which are outside B.C. jurisdiction.

IMPOSSIBLE

The union's notices say that it is impossible to sign a statutory declaration that none of its membership funds — check-off or otherwise — be used politically.

Some of its funds — $2 a month — go to international headquarters in Denver, says the union.

It also admits that it has made direct political contributions to election candidates "and may reasonably be expected to continue to do so in the future."

It says that it has agreed
